Washington—Herbert Hoover's determination to appoint a fact-finding commission to investigate the whole prohibition problem, is being received with mixed feelings by wets and dries. It cannot be regarded with any great satisfaction by either side because while there have been statistics galore no judicial body has attempted to sift them.

The inquiry may take two or three years. It is the first constructive effort to get the facts since prohibition was adopted ten years ago. Congressional committees influenced by the sections of the country from which their members come have had hearings and printed volumes of testimony but these have not carried conviction. The assumption now is that men of national prominence with judicial experience will conduct the inquiry.

Unless the personnel of the commission is high grade there will neither be confidence in its conclusions nor a tendency on the part of congress itself to be swayed. Politically, many members of congress are just asking for a chance to take a position based on the kind of thing fact finding commission would report. Many a dry with wets in his district has wanted to pass the problem to some other body of men for determination, agreeing in advance to give due weight to a disinterested inquiry. Many members have said to their constituents that they are open-minded on the subject of modification.

TO DECIDE EFFECTS

The question before the fact finding commission will be to learn what have been the economic as well as social consequences of prohibition. Has production been increased? Is the prosperity of the country due to small labor turn-over? Is the failure to enforce prohibition affecting a relatively small number, namely the upper classes and is the abolition of the saloon the reason for the high record of sales in chain stores and the retail business generally?

These are the questions that a commission will try to answer. And if after surveying all the facts the commission think that some parts of the law should be modified it will not be so easy for the uncompromising dry leaders to stand in the way of modification. Nor will it be possible for the wets to stand in the way if they have in the past by continuing arrests for drunkenness have increased if indeed the figures of the commission should happen to show less intoxication recorded on the police blotters of the country.

Both wets and dries will be submitting their case to the commission and if the personnel of the commission is of high order it will be difficult either side to resist the conclusions reached. Both sides therefore will be taking a chance but so strong is the conviction of each that today they respectively feel their cause may be aided. Nevertheless certain uneasiness is manifest. The fact-finding commission will put an end to extravagant claims of wets and dries. Some of the dry leaders have deplored the continuous agitation by the wets. The deliberations of a commission will mean with the attendant publicity a great deal more agitation. This gives comfort to the wets. But if as the dries believe the economic consequences of prohibition have been advantageous they will be more aggressive than ever in urging rigid enforcement.

MAN KILLED WHEN CAR

CRASHES INTO TREE

Kenosha—(P)—Lewis Eichler, 20, was killed early Friday when a car in which he was riding on highway 15, one mile south of here, went off the road and hit a tree. Three other men were in the car. One of them received slight injuries.

Finding of a woman's purse near the wrecked machine has led to an investigation to see whether a woman was in the car with the men. An inquest is planned.

Detroit—(P)—Six persons were injured seriously and a furniture store, a motion picture theatre, a grocery and a restaurant were destroyed by an explosion at Gratiot and Harper avenues shortly before 10 o'clock Friday morning. The damage was estimated at $150,000. No one was killed.

Police believe the blast was planned as reprisal for the fatal shooting of an Italian marcher in a Columbus day parade here last October.

Two of the injured are under police guard in a hospital for questioning and a third man found hiding in the vicinity is held for investigation. Detectives investigating the blast said it was caused by gasoline, two drums of which were found in the alley behind the furniture store.

ON INQUIRY LAST

The seriously injured are: Jose Zangaro, 36, and Philip Cusumano, 25, held as police prisoners in a hospital. Mrs. Harriet Univerdross, 38, Mrs. Elsie Miller, 32; Harry Corden, 38, and Frank Young, 52. Zangaro and Cusumano were found pinned under the wreckage.

The third man, held is Giralomo Pecararo, 32, found hiding in the vicinity.

Search is being made for John Garrisi, 45, proprietor of the furniture store. Relatives said he left with his family for Chicago Thursday after having received several threatening letters. Besides the buildings destroyed several other places including a branch bank, a bakery, a laundry and a dry goods store were damaged by the explosion.

PRESTIGE MAY

to Rockefeller—German
Stock Is Pledged

New York—(P)—The New York Times says Friday that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., has brought his powerful influence to the aid of his son in the fight to oust Colonel Robert W. Stewart from the chairmanship of the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

Aroused by the attitude of Colonel Stewart, which he considers an affront, the paper says, the elder Rockefeller has entered the fight so determinedly that his associates may assume active charge of the battle being waged between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the chairman of the Indiana company.

The entrance of the father into the fray was regarded in Wall Street as a factor that might determine the outcome of the struggle for control of the Standard Oil company of Indiana. Numerous brokerage houses, insurance companies and other large holders of Indiana stock, which heretofore have been inclined to be neutral, are expected to rally to the Rockefeller interests because of the senior Rockefeller's influence.

Word from Chicago said Colonel Stewart had started for New York. His errand, financial circles believed, was to take personal charge of the canvass for proxies among large holders of Indiana stock in New York to be used at the meeting March 7.

PLEDGES PROXIES

Washington—(P)—Aid for John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in his fight to oust Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, has come from Howard R. Sutherland, alien property custodian.

Mr. Sutherland, by virtue of his office holds the voting power of between 12,000 and 13,000 shares of Standard Oil company of Indiana stock, the property of Germans seized during the war and he has assigned the voting proxies to Mr. Rockefeller.

Mr. Rockefeller asked for the voting power about a week ago and before Mr. Sutherland made his decision, a similar request came from Mr. Stewart. The alien property custodian made his decision known Thursday, saying that he had acted only after careful consideration. The stock is on deposit with the Equitable Trust company of New York.

BASIS OF DISPUTE

The clash between the two capitalists is one of the many ramifications growing out of the oil leases made by the government. Mr. Stewart's testimony before a senate committee investigating the Teapot Dome oil lease did not please Mr. Rockefeller and he asked for Stewart's resignation. This Stewart has refused to give.

There are more than 9,000,000 shares of $5 par value stock of the Standard Oil company of Indiana outstanding and both Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Stewart are supposed to be busy in an effort to gain control of the majority of these. Mr. Rockefeller is understood to be assured of the support of large blocks of stocks held by the Harlan, Flagler, Rogers estates and of other Standard Oil companies, while Mr. Stewart's principal support is expected to come from the stock held by the 38,000 small shareholders and the employees.

Kohler Merger Program
Is Up To State Solons

Madison—(P)—The legislature took its weekend recess Friday, both houses adjourning until Tuesday afternoon after introduction of a bill in the senate following out Governor Kohler's suggestions for consolidation and coordination of state departments.

Under the bill, by senator Walter H. Hunt, River Falls, the number of commissions and departments would be reduced from about 70 to 25.

The assembly passed the resolution by Ed Hiker of Racine, calling upon the railroad commission to furnish practically all of the information in its hands on telephone companies operating in Wisconsin.

Assemblyman L. D. Eastman presented a bill for a 3-cent gasoline tax and giving counties $20 per mile per year for roads maintained during the winter to the satisfaction of the highway commission.

Senator Hunt's bill would, in addition to the consolidations, abolish many non-functioning bureaus and transfer the duties of some minor departments to the 25 remaining ones.

The administration's specific recommendation of consolidation of the departments of dairy and food markets with the commissioner of agriculture's office, was contained in the hunt measure. His bill would also abolish the board of public affairs and create a budget commissioner, appointed by the governor for six years, with the approval of the senate. Governor Kohler recommended a one-man finance-reviewer in place of the finance board.

Senator Howard Teasdale of Sparta, put a joint resolution asking a constitutional amendment to allow legislators $10 per day for not more than 110 days of legislative work. This resolution would have to pass two legislatures before being voted upon by the electorate.

The Superior Telegram would be made the official state paper instead of the Madison Capital Times under an assembly bill by Philip Nelson of Douglas-co. The Telegram habitually furnished legislators with daily copies of its paper. They are on the desks of all members each day.

WATER BOY IS ACCLAIMED AS
AFGHAN EMIRAmanullah May Attempt to Regain Throne but Lowers His Standard

Peshawar, India—(P)—Advices from Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, state that Habibullah Khan, victorious rebel leader known as Bacha Saka, or the water boy, has been acclaimed the new emir by the entire province of Kabul.

He is understood to have 15,000 men under him, fully equipped and is said to be maintaining excellent order.

Contrary to Karachi dispatches saying that King Amanullah, who abdicated last week was preparing to attempt recovery of his throne, the reports received here state that he has ordered the governor of Kandahar to lower the royal standard which was hoisted there Tuesday on the ground that he no longer is king.

Messages from Jalabad say that the Shinwari and other tribes have sent representatives to Kabul to meet Habibullah Khan. The Shinwari tribe was in revolt against Amanullah but recently a truce had been patched up. Sirdar Ali Hamed, former governor of Kabul, who recently was in control at Jalabad also was reported to have gone to the capital.

WOULD REGAIN THRONE?

London—(P)—Advices from Karachi, India, Friday said that former King Amanullah of Afghanistan was gathering support from southern Afghans for an attempt to recover his lost throne from the water carrier who became king, Habibullah Khan. One incentive presumably is Amanullah's expectation of an heir.

Amanullah, after his abdication in Kabul, reached Kandahar in the south of Afghanistan and raised the royal standard over the palace there, indicating that he still considered himself a factor in the situation. He seemed to be in authority over that section and it was reported that he also had support at Ghazni.

Among problems at the forthcoming conference is the one centering around the proposal that Germany pay a fixed amount annually instead of the $500,000,000, plus a prosperity plan. There is also the question of the disposal of $4,000,000,000 in German reparations, bonds under the plan drawn up by the last meeting of the international committee of reparations experts four years ago and also the question of deciding how long Germany will pay the annuities, since no limit was fixed by the Dawes plan.

The American representatives will meet with 12 other representatives of the governments of France, Great Britain, Italy, Belgium, Japan and Germany. These have already been selected and include such names as Emile Moreau, governor of the Bank of France; Sir Joseph Stamp of England, member of the Dawes committee, and president of the London, Midland and Scottish railway and Keno Mori, for Japan, former financial agent of Japanese government at London, Paris and Washington.

CURB ELECTION OF

London—(P)—The high council of the Salvation army was restrained Friday by the chancery court from electing a successor to Bramwell Booth, deceased general. The injunction operates until after a hearing by the court which was set for 10:20 Monday morning.

Wilfred Greene, who appeared in court on behalf of Bramwell Booth, told the tribunal that the case was of great urgency because the high council was in session and would proceed with its action unless restrained from nominating a successor to General Booth.

"And you may say for me that I found the marshal's general condition somewhat better this morning," chimed in Foch's regular physician, Dr. Duvivier.

Senate In

Roy O. WestStruggle Over Confirmation
Is Carried on Today Behind Closed Doors

Washington—(P)—The nomination of Roy O. West of Chicago, to be secretary of interior was scheduled for consideration late Friday behind the closed doors of the senate with determined opposition to his confirmation in prospect.

Senator Deneen, Republican, Illinois, a personal friend of Mr. West, however, was prepared to continue the fight he has made in his behalf and was confident that the votes were at hand to obtain confirmation.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, supported by some members of the Republican independent bloc and some Democrats, is opposed to West principally because of his investments in stocks of the Samuel Insull power utility interests.

As secretary of interior, Mr. West also is a member of the federal power commission which passes on applications for power permits.

The lands committee by a vote of 8 to 4 favorably reported the nomination of West to the senate before the Christmas recess.

Informal announcement has been made by members of the senate Indian affairs committee that they will voice no protest against the secret vote because of his administration of the middle Rio Grande conservancy project in New Mexico which is under jurisdiction of the interior department. Affairs of this project have been under inquiry recently by the committee.

MOVE TO ASSURE VOTE
ON 15-CRUISER BILL

Washington—(P)—Fearful that the cruiser bill will be left stranded by the receding legislative tide at the session's end, Chairman Hale of the senate naval committee, has suggested that the senate meet an hour earlier each day. No action has been taken on his proposals as yet, but the request may be complied with next week.

Senator Hale's demand came after the cruiser bill had been temporarily laid aside to consider a deficiency bill. There are also other supply measures waiting and their pressure seems likely to cause other delays for the bill which would provide 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier.

The cruiser bill was before the senate Friday, having received as yet little fire from the opposition. However, one of its supporters, Senator Tydings of Maryland, a World War veteran, in a speech Thursday insisted that the United States should have naval parity with Great Britain.

Metropolitan Sewerage System Urged For Valley

PROBLEMS OF RIVER CITIES ARE OUTLINED

Growth of Appleton and Nearby Communities Warrent Project, Says Baker

Installation of a metropolitan sewerage system in the Fox river valley, suggested several years ago by Dr. Clarence W. Baker, engineer for the American Pulp and Paper association, when he was state sanitary engineer, again was advised by Dr. Baker Thursday night in a talk at the forum dinner of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Northern.

His proposal provided for a system which would handle the sewage of all the municipalities between Neenah and Kaukauna, with a disposal plant located near Kaukauna. The proximity of the municipalities between Neenah and Kaukauna, and their rapid growth warrants serious consideration of the plan, according to Dr. Baker. Adoption of such an undertaking not only would save considerable money in the long run, but would prevent inconvenience in the future, he predicted.

Sewerage problems confronting Appleton and neighboring cities and villages were given a thorough airing by Dr. Baker and L. F. Warrick, state sanitary engineer. Motion pictures outlining methods of sewage disposal employed in various Wisconsin cities were shown, and a general discussion concluded the evening's program.

The city administration was commended for its recent action authorizing construction next summer of the first unit of the intercepting sewer along the north bank of the Fox river, and was urged by Mr. Warrick to continue with the project and to construct a tank system permitting additions as occasion demands.

TREATMENT IS DESCRIBED

Sewage treatment for Appleton was discussed by Mr. Warrick, who opened the program. He suggested two paramount factors associated with installation of a system. They were adequate financial provision, and efficient personnel to carry out the program once it is started.

"Appleton, a rapidly growing community, constructed its original sewage system on the combined plan," he said. "Under this plan, the same pipes carry both storm water and sanitary sewage. The plan has its limitations, however, and this city has reached that stage where it must turn to the separate plan, under which storm water and sanitary sewage are handled in separate sewers. Appleton has reached the size where the latter plan is the most economical."

In the history of the separate plan about to be undertaken here, he recalled that the idea was proposed by Dr. Baker when he was state sanitary engineer in 1922. In 1925, the city authorized a survey here, and W. G. Kirchoff, Madison, sanitary and hydraulic engineer, devised a comprehensive plan for the city to follow, completing it in the latter part of 1925.

His recommendations provide, in brief, for separation of the sanitary sewage and storm water, and for construction of large intercepting sewers, one along the north bank of the Fox river and the other along the south bank, to carry away the sanitary sewage. Storm water would be emptied directly into the river.

Sanitary sewers in all parts of the city would be connected with the interceptors, which would carry the sewage to a disposal plant, location of which has been proposed at the northeast side of the city, about 1,000 feet away from St. Joseph cemetery.

STEPS ARE OUTLINED

Two major steps, and eventually a third, as associated with the treatment of sewage, he explained. The first is the primary treatment, in which solids are removed by screens and tank process, employing biological agencies. Then follows the secondary treatment, in which the "true solution" is eliminated by means of filters. The last treatment is one of sterilization.

Mr. Warrick believed the tank treatment, or primary step, would be sufficient to take care of this city's requirements for the time being. He suggested that the tanks be constructed so as to permit erection of additional ones as occasion demands. A progressive program of construction, in which the system is built in steps, was advised.

The Relation of Industrial Waste to Domestic Sewage was discussed by Dr. Baker. Although the disposition of industrial waste is necessary from a standpoint of preserving aquatic life in rivers and streams, care of domestic waste is the most important because of its direct bearing on public health, he pointed out. Industry and municipalities are dependent upon each other, however, and the disposition of waste from each must be considered.

Of the 52 paper mills in Wisconsin, approximately 34 are located in the Fox River valley, he said. The capitalization of paper mills in the state totals approximately $125,000,000, employees number about 18,000, and the annual payroll amounts to about $20,000,000. Fox River valley mills employ about 10,000 men at a monthly salary of about $1,000,000.

Discussing the effects of industrial waste upon streams, he reported the results of a survey conducted along the Fox River two years ago, in which the oxygen content of the water was determined.

REPORTS ON SURVEY

Eight parts of oxygen dissolved in a million parts of water is the maximum capacity of water, he said. A solution of this ratio gives a solution of about 100 per cent. When the water is only 25 per cent saturated, or when only two parts of oxygen are dissolved in a million parts of water, the oxygen content is not sufficient to sustain aquatic life.

Waste oxidizes and purifies in water, but the process consumes a large part of the oxygen in the water. Although industrial waste gener-

60 Pounds Of Perch Await Hungry County, City Dads

Members of the county board and city officials are looking forward to Friday with all the anxiety of a small boy looking forward to Christmas eve, because they are again to be guests at the fifth annual fish fry arranged by A. "Juicy" Gritz, butcher, and George Walsh, local fisherman, and narrators.

While the majority of Appletonians were satisfied to hug the covers of their beds, and to toast their toes around the home fires Sunday morning when the mercury dropped 25 degrees below zero, "Juicy" and George were out in the middle of Lake Winnebago with their fishing tackle desperately hunting for "boneless" perch.

Late Sunday afternoon they returned with 60 pounds of perch, most of which were caught with George's new invention, the Chinese wiggler. George expects to get a patent on the invention soon, and hopes that his hardest working days will be over. He is sure the wiggler is a success.

"It was so cold out there that the flame of George's cigarette lighter froze," Honest "Juicy" said, Thursday. "But we didn't mind the cold, as a matter of fact I never felt more comfortable in my life," George said. "It took quite a bit of time this year to get a hole in the ice, because it must have been at least seven feet thick," Juicy said. George was willing to admit that Juicy had his hole in the ice first, because his old "corn cob" pipe was exceptionally hot, and it wasn't long before the bowl had plowed its way through the huge cake of ice. George was less fortunate in digging his way through the ice. He was forced to heat a twelve foot iron poker used for stoking oil burners, with matches, and most of the flames froze before they were applied to the tip. He finally managed to melt his way through, and the wiggler did the rest.

Invitations to members of the county board, city officials, and Judge Theodore Berg, champion fish eater, were sent out earlier in the week, and Charley Hopfensberger, official fish cleaner, has guaranteed that not a scale or fin will be found on the "boneless" perch.

Judges of the contest will be Miss Lucille Welby, Professors Warren Beck and Rex Mitchell, of Lawrence college.

BISHOP CONCLUDES PREACHING MISSION

Bishop H. Lester Smith, Chataignera, will conclude the preaching mission at First Methodist church with the services Friday evening. His subject will be Evangelism and How to Go About It. The mission was to have started Sunday but a break in the church heating system compelled a postponement until Monday. Bishop Smith has been preaching daily at Lawrence chapel, at the church and has held daily conferences.

The services Friday night start at 7:30.

Mrs. E. J. Ladner has returned from St. Cloud, Minn., where she has been visiting her parents for the past three weeks.

ally consumes the most oxygen, domestic waste is the most important from a public health standpoint, he pointed out. It is necessary that industries and municipalities work together in solving their sewerage problems, he said.

In the survey conducted on the Fox River in 1926 to determine the percentage of oxygen the water contained in various places along the stream, it was found that the solution was about 100 per cent above Neenah and Menasha, slightly less between the two cities and Appleton, with a gradual reduction below Appleton. The solution tested about 60 per cent, or six parts of oxygen to a million parts of water, at Kaukauna, while below Kaukauna the percentage was considerably less.

In the vicinity of Wrightstown the percentage was about 2, while the water in some places that far down contained scarcely any oxygen, which condition of course does not sustain aquatic life.

"On the other hand, municipal sewage must be considered from a health factor, so it really does not seem fair to ask industries to clean up their sewerage problems first," he said.

FELT LIKE A WRECK

Mr. Peter Dais, New Franklin, Wis., declares: "I suffered so I couldn't raise my arms above my head. My stomach was always full of gas. I had stabbing pains around the heart. I was a wreck. Nothing gave me relief until I discovered Dreco. Now I feel like a young man."

Dreco, a combination of plant and herb juices combines very readily with the juices of the stomach and that is why its action is so prompt and so positive.

A report of the 1928 program of Region 7 was read and plans for 1929 were outlined at the two-day conference. The principal speakers were Dr. James West, chief scout executive of Chicago, and Dr. George J. Fisher, deputy chief scout executive. Phillip L. Reed of Chicago, a member of the Chicago council, was unanimously elected chairman of the Regional executive board at the annual banquet at the Edgewater Beach hotel Tuesday evening.

WOMAN GETS DIVORCE; HUSBAND WAS CRUEL

Mrs. Agnes Fassbender, 57, route 1, Black Creek, was granted an absolute divorce by Judge Theodore Berg in circuit court Thursday on her plea that her husband, John Fassbender, 62, route 1, Black Creek, was cruel, an habitual drunkard. She charged that when he was drunk he used obscene language to her. She also charged that during their four years of married life she had given him approximately $2,500 and in granting the divorce the judge ordered him to return this sum. The couple was married on Jan. 31, 1924, at Menominee, Mich., and separated Nov. 16, 1928.

Testimony also was started in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg Friday morning in a suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Lovina Younger, Appleton, against her husband, Otto F. Younger, Appleton. Mrs. Younger charges non-support and cruel and inhuman treatment. They were married Nov. 7, 1885.

COUNTY BOARD MEETING IS SET AHEAD ONE WEEK

The February meeting of county board, which had been scheduled for Feb. 12, has been postponed until Feb. 18 according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk, because of a conflict with the annual meeting of the Wisconsin County Board association which gathers at Madison from Feb. 13 to 15. Mr. Hantschel, and Mike Mack, chairman of the Outagamie-co. board, are planning to attend the meeting at Madison.

How to make canned vegetables even more appetizing

The taste of nearly all good foods is improved with sugar

SCIENCE now knows that the great majority of the canned fruits and vegetables on the market today are rich in vitamins. This is great news to all who wish to be well fed and healthy. In order that your family may relish these healthful foods, be sure that they are served in the most appetizing way possible. For example, add one level teaspoonful of sugar to one can of corn when heating it for serving. One rounded tablespoonful, at least, of sugar should be added to one can of tomatoes to develop the taste and make them palatable and delicious. The flavor of canned peas is improved by adding one-half to one teaspoonful of sugar to each can, and for string beans add one-fourth to one-half teaspoonful per can. The general rule is that all canned vegetables should be sweetened to taste so that they will be more enjoyable.

As a nationally recognized medical authority says, . . . "canned tomatoes after three years were as rich in vitamins as raw tomatoes . . . canned strawberries were also found to equal raw strawberries in vitamin content." He names numerous other canned fruits and vegetables and all were found rich in vitamins.

Welcome the canned foods to your table. To do so is to welcome health to your home. Eat plenty of varied, nourishing foods sweetened for taste and zest. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

ASSEMBLYMEN MIX MUSIC WITH JOB OF MAKING LAWS

Barbershop Cords Echo Through Capital as Legislators Warble

Madison (P)—The Assembly, always the more informal of the two houses of the legislature, has started its noon-hour "community singing." The chorus of male voices can be heard all through the main part of the Capitol as a few members of the lower house gather outside the Assembly doors. Carlton W. Mauthe, Fond du Lac Assemblyman, occupied the bench and pounded out old melodies for the group of legislators, pages and visitors who chose to lean against the marble walls, or attempt to sit on the end of the bench with Mauthe and sing to his accompaniment. The habit carries over from previous sessions. The piano was left there after some festive occasion in the Assembly and was put to use immediately by sundry barbershop quartet of the Assembly. Echoing through the marble walls of the building, the music is quite appealing.

WOULD OFFER BAND

Governor Walter J. Kohler will consider any proposals to have his band give concerts in the Capitol park or in the building during the summer, he said. He had not, at the time he was asked, heard of any such proposal, but he said he would be pleased to have his factory band present concerts if they were customary here and if the Kohler band was "tid." Sunday concerts in the Capitol entry-ways and in Madison parks are a summer practice in Madison.

MRS. KOHLER AS SPEAKER

Mrs. Kohler, wife of the governor, was expected to return to Madison Friday, after delivering an address on art work before Green Bay women's club.

Her efforts to restore one room of the executive mansion as it was fifty years ago, have not met with much success, the Governor understands. Mrs. Kohler has found that old furniture has been pretty well distributed during the various administrations that have used the mansion, whose house have disposed of the material for more modern stuff.

Mrs. Kohler has found a fine antique in an old bookcase that is in the mansion, however, and several other pieces which show their age without being dilapidated are being kept.

THE WAY TO FAME

Don V. Smith, Jefferson, Wis., representing the county of that name, is on his way to fame. First he changed his name from Reis to Perry and that decided the election of the speaker. Then he was appointed to chairmanship of the agricultural committee, one of the most important of the Assembly. Now he has introduced a bill for a 3 cent bounty on blackbirds and the irreverent employees and others who scoff at official dignity of men in high office have nick-named him "Bye-bye Blackbird."

SEATS FOR PASSENGERS

Mrs. Mary O. Kryszak, sole woman member of the legislature, will probably propose bills compelling traction companies to load only persons who can be seated in street cars and repealing the 5 per cent requirement for placing the name of party candidates on the ballot. The only woman legislator, who succeeds Miss Helen P. Thompson, Park Falls, in that capacity, although a Democrat, believes Mr. Kohler's policies have great merit. She is a newspaper worker; Miss Thompson was a school teacher and hotel operator.

THEY'RE GOOD FRIENDS

Assemblyman Reis and Perry, floor manager for the Progressives and Conservative speaker, respectively, have accepted each others hands in fellowship thrice.

When they met in Madison before Perry was elected speaker over Reis, they shook hands.

When the fifteen ballots had relegated Reis to his former position of Progressive floor leader and elevated Perry to the speakership, Reis was the first to congratulate the new presiding officer. They shook hands.

When Mr. Perry announced the appointment of Reis to chairmanship of the important judiciary committee, the Madison attorney accepted with thanks. They shook hands.

ROTARY PLOW USED TO OPEN AIRPORT RUNWAYS

The Fox river air mail plane was expected to land in Appleton Friday for the first time in more than a week.

Runways at the airport were plowed out Thursday night with a Suoco Rotary plow, which is being demonstrated this week to the county highway committee. In a few hours the plow had cleared two lanes 100 feet wide and more than 2,000 feet long, making it possible for the air mail plane to land and take off here.

The plow also has been in use since Tuesday on county highways which had not been previously opened and which county equipment had failed to open.

PLENTY OF FRESH VEGETABLES AND FRUIT ON MARKET

Cold Weather Had Little Affect on Fruit and Vegetable Prices

There are still plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables on local stands from which housewives can select their weekend products for storing the family larder. The cold weather conditions prevailing here for the past few weeks had a little effect on wholesale prices, but the retail prices are practically the same as they were last week, according to local merchants.

Cauliflower are available this week at 25 to 45 cents a head; green peppers, 10 cents each; garlic, 35 cents a pound; silver skin onions, 10 cents a pound; parsley, 10 cents a bunch; string beans, 35 to 40 cents a pound; Spanish onions, 15 cents a pound; celery cabbage, 15 to 25 cents a head; rutabagas, 5 cents a pound; sweet potatoes, 10 and 12 cents a pound; and brussels sprouts, 35 cents a quart.

CHRISTIAN'S DUTY TO BRING SOULS TO GOD, BISHOP SAYS

Children Denied Religious Training Should Be Parents' Judges

The evangelistic work of the church and how it should embody individual groups living in a Christian community was the theme of a sermon by Bishop H. Lester Smith at First Methodist church, Thursday evening. The speaker compared the man who lives a Christ-like life, although he was not essentially a Christian, to that of a man who had been brought up in a Christian home, church and community, but still was not a true Christian. Too many people today use true Christianity as a mask, the speaker pointed out.

"True Christianity is the voluntary personal union of the individual with Christ," Bishop Smith said. It is up to the true Christians of the church to see that they live a Christ-like life, and in so doing to bring the work of the Saviour in gaining souls. It should be the duty of their best to gain the less fortunate to try and bring them back, and re-establish their hopes and faith.

OPEN TRUCK BIDS AT ROAD COMMITTEE MEET

The Outagamie county highway committee, at a meeting Monday afternoon at the office of A. C. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, will open bids to furnish two three-ton trucks and two V-slope snow plows. The equipment will be added to the new removal equipment so that work in the future will be more effective.

Young and old people of sterling quality living in our country today, who have as yet to learn of the Christian duty of the church, should carry out the will of the Master to preach his word and gain souls.

Fathers and mothers who are not willing to preach and teach their children the Gospel of Christ, should not be permitted to bring children into the world, the speaker continued. A child which has lived a clean and wholesome life, but has not been taught of the Christ until it is too late should have the right to stand in judgment and condemn its parents," Bishop Smith declared. The speaker urged Christians of a community to cooperate in carrying out the work of the Saviour in gaining souls. It should be the duty of the true Christian to speak to the members of the churches, and to try and bring them back, and re-establish their hopes and faith.

The first Christmas trees sold in America were brought from the Catskills to New York by an enterprising woodsman named Mark Carr, in 1851.

The incorporation of Chicago as a town took place in 1833. The population wasn't much more than the legal number permissible for a town of 150.

DOCTOR SHOWS QUICKEST WAY TO END HEAD COLDS

Many Here Who Try Pleasant Hospital Method At Home Get Instant Relief

Doctors realizing the need to "play safe in dealing with a cold during changeable weather" are now advising the home use of a pleasant hospital method that has given surprisingly quick results to vast numbers of Appleton people.

C. H. Wilkins, for example, had neglected his cold for a day or so after he had begun to sneeze and cough. Examination showed that one of his nasal tubes was badly congested, his throat was inflamed and the cold was spreading rapidly, causing fear of pneumonia.

Doctors then gave him double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which have relieved even the most extreme hospital cases. With the very first pleasant swallow he felt its comforting, healing warmth—from his nose passages deep down into his chest. Almost immediately his head and chest began to clear up and in another day or so, the doctor reports, there was no trace left of the cold.

Notes: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Ayer's Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person tomorrow. Endorsed by Schlitz Bros. and all druggists.

NEWS OF NEENAH AND MENASHA

GUARD UNIT
FETES 100
AT BANQUET

Three Components of Army
Are Described by Officers
at Get-together

Menasha—More than 100 persons, including Mayor Held, members of the common council, and representatives of various organizations, were guests Thursday evening of Headquarters company, 12th Infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, at a get-together banquet at S. A. Cook armory. It was strictly a military spread prepared by James Mackin, company cook, and Al Hansen, supply sergeant. The way the guests ate was a compliment to those who prepared it and to the company.

The banquet was followed by a short program. Lieut. Drahm was toastmaster and welcomed the guests. He said the real purpose of the gathering was to inform the people about the organization and its work. Sergt. Joseph Doyer of Appleton, who has been instructing the military companies of this part of the state for more than a year, said the United States army has a service called the D. M. L. and D. O. L. This branch service is about 5,000 strong and furnishes instructors for the National Guard. Our mission here is to do any good we can to help the good cause along, he said.

Major F. W. Hoffman of Appleton said he would like to bring out the duties of the National Guard, what it would do if called into operation. He said we have in this country under the national defense act three components of the army. The first is the regular army which gives its whole time to the defense of the country. The second component is the National Guard which gives part of its time to military affairs and the third is the unorganized reserve.

CALL ARMY FIRST

In case of a call the regular army would be the first to take the field. It would be expected to hold the enemy in check for three months until assisted by the National Guard. In order to do this it is necessary that the National Guard spend part of its time in military training in times of peace. After the National guard takes the field the unorganized guard will be drawn in for nine months training. One-half of the force of this country is in the unorganized reserve and one-sixth is in the regular army, Mayor Hoffman said.

Staff Sergeant Waldmar Olson of Headquarters company gave a short talk on recruit instruction, relating some of his experiences in this work. The silent drill was then put on and was one of the features of the program. The squad executed the manual of arms and different evolutions with snap and precision. The company also gave a short snappy drill. Lieut. Drahm explained the different sections of his company and showed how they operated by having each section at its respective work. The section chiefs are: Intelligence, Corp. Foster; wire, Sergt. Johnson; radio, Corp. Adams; message center, Sergt. Rippl. Sergt. Joseph Doyer of the regular army who is on duty with the National Guard as instructor gave a talk on marksmanship and Mayor Held presented the following members with medals won during the year: Lieut. Dederick, John Kimbrey, Howard Whitman, Sergt. Rippl, Henry Kriesch, Corp. Foster, Private Driscoll, Sergt. Johnson.

ALDERMAN DENIES HE SAID HE WOULD QUIT

Menasha—Alderman Anton Brezinski of the Menasha first ward, has emphatically denied the statement appearing in Neenah and Menasha papers in which he is quoted as stating that he would not serve the remainder of his term under Mayor Held. Alderman Brezinski, who has been in the Menasha city council for 18 years, said he did say he would not serve another term on the council nor would he be a candidate under Mayor Held.

MENASHA
PERSONALS

Menasha—C. W. Laemrich was a high class visitor Thursday. On account of the depth of snow he was compelled to use a snow automobile. Mrs. E. A. Oberweiser of Stevens Point and Miss Flora Oberweiser of Menasha left Thursday for Florida, where they will spend the remainder of the winter. They are making the trip with an automobile. Joseph Walker has returned from Milwaukee, where he attended the automobile show. Mrs. L. M. Hanson has returned from Iron River, where she attended the funeral of her parents who died within a few hours of each other. Henry Muecke is receiving treatment at Theda Clark hospital.

AROUSE ENTHUSIASM

Menasha—Students of the Menasha high school held a pep meeting at 1:30 Friday afternoon to arouse additional interest in the Menasha-Neenah basketball game Friday night at S. A. Cook armory. Menasha students will turn out to the game in a body to support their team and it is expected every seat in the armory will be occupied. Each high school class put on a stunt at the meeting.

PISTOL SHOTS ECHO AS KNITTERS RESIST DEMANDS OF ALLEN A

Conflicts Between Employers, Employees May Result in Grand Jury Investigation

BY DONALD C. BOLLES
Kenosha.—(C)—Pistol shots that found human targets, crudely fashioned bombs that damaged homes, street fights and crowds of men and women going gaily to jail, are chapters in the 19 month labor controversy between the Allen A Knitting company and its former employees. The trouble, which began in February, 1928, eventually involved the United States district court, brought dissension into the Kenosha city government, and, finally, a demand from 4,000 citizens for a grand jury investigation.

When the company sought to introduce the two-machine system whereby one operator and two apprentices managed two knitting machines, the knitters opposed the move. The old method allotted one knitter and an apprentice to each machine. The Allen A executives held that the two machine plan increased production and the knitters walked out.

On February 15, the company announced that they might return if they gave up their union membership. The following day 236 men and 100 women did not return. The company called it a "strike" of the workers, a "lockout."

Allen A retreated from its original position, offering to treat individually with the union people and permitting them to retain their membership. The workers asked that a board of arbitration be named. Both offers were refused.

During the trouble more than 450 arrests for disorderly conduct have been made. Homes of present mill workers have been bombed, explosives ripped a hole in an Allen A warehouse, and another charge damaged the summer home of Roger M. Kimball, vice president. Men, chiefly mill hands, have been shot and two or three instances of kidnapping have occurred.

Gov. Fred Zimmerman declined to invoke martial law, shortly before Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger, of the United States district court, enjoined the workers against picketing and intimidation. Union officials call it "the most drastic injunction ever issued." Two groups arrested for violation of the injunction were freed by juries. In October, 26 union knitters were adjudged in contempt of court and fined. They chose to go to jail and want to be organized cheering of fellow unionists. Nine women in the group were released after two weeks, when their fines were paid. The men remained in jail for their full sentences.

The tense situation was felt in the Kenosha city government, and led to the resignation of C. M. Osborn, city manager, and Thad W. Logan, chief of police. The union knitters and their sympathizers sought to restore the old aldermanic system of government but were beaten November 7.

Joseph Padway, counsel for the knitters, said the two machine system is "detrimental to the workers and creates a surplus of skilled knitters, resulting in low wages and unemployment." William Smith, secretary of the federation, further contends that efficiency is reduced.

Principals in Knitting Strike

Allen A contends the plan works no hardship upon the workers, and instead of being a two machine-system is a "one and one-half man to a machine system."

While the plant is operating with new help the officers patrol the grounds, the knitters, supported by their union, continue their opposition and are prepared, according to Louis F. Budenz, a leader, to "stick for five years."

THREE IN FAMILY ARE BENEFITED

"If Anybody Wants To Know What I Think of Sargon Have Them See Me" Says Contractor.

"Besides myself I know several people who have obtained wonderful results from Sargon," said Adolph J. Meinecke, of Meinecke Brothers, Milwaukee, Wis.

If there ever was a case where the results accomplished by a medicine have caused the person benefited by it to become an enthusiastic advocate of its use, it is that of Mr. Meinecke. He is a part owner of the contracting firm of Meinecke Brothers, at 1816 Vilet Street.

"If any man has ever praised Sargon I am that one, and it deserves everything I have said about it. Three other members of our family are taking it and all of them are getting most satisfactory results," said Mr. Meinecke.

"For a number of years I have been troubled with constipation and kept dosing myself almost every day trying to overcome it. About six months ago I suffered an acute attack of indigestion. Since that time I have had a burning sensation in the pit of my stomach. It felt as though it was raw, or full of acid, and as soon as I would eat a meal the pain would become a torture to me. I kept dosing myself with soda and other things like so-called 'indigestion tablets.' This condition seemed to sap my vitality. I felt tired and worn out all the time and my rest was broken at night. I would get up in the morning hardly able to drag myself to work; and I had previously been an active man. My condition was slowing me down when a friend of mine suggested Sargon. Before I had finished my first bottle I noticed a great change in my feelings. The burning in my stomach disappeared, my appetite increased and I had completely quit the soda habit. My energy is now what it formerly was and I am so well pleased with the results of the Sargon treatment that I have persuaded my father to take it."

"What is remarkable about Sargon to me is how quickly it does the work. If any one wants to know about Sargon, tell them to see me," was the closing remark of Mr. Meinecke.

Sargon may be obtained in Appleton at Schilz Brothers Drug Company.

KEEPING THE PARTY ALIVE
Former Gov. Alfred Smith of New York made an effective appeal over the radio for liquidation of the Democratic national committee's campaign deficit of $1,500,000. Mr. Smith does not want this indebtedness cleaned up by the contributions of a few wealthy men. He asks that the 15,000,000 supporters of his candidacy for president come across with small contributions, and as an additional incentive offered a book containing his campaign speeches to all subscribers of $2 or more.

As the typists say, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party." There will not be another opportunity for at least four years. We should say offhand that every person who voted for Gov. Smith did so with such spirit and warmth that a donation of a few dollars to wipe out the Democratic deficit would be a pleasure as well as privilege. Nor should there be delay in answering this summons to duty and in the discharge of so Christian an obligation.

As Gov. Smith points out, it takes a lot of money to run a presidential campaign. This is the first time the Democrats have really discovered this fact. A few years ago, as he stated, they held an expenditure of $1,000,000 by the Republican party to be an outrage and an open attempt to purchase the presidency. This year the Democrats spent more for radio alone than that amount. "Things have changed since Hannah died," and do not mean Mark either. Realizing that money talks, the Democrats this year certainly proceeded to make themselves heard. If they went in a little deep Mr. Raskob is not to be blamed for that. As a crusade it was a cause cheap at any price. Sufficient time has now elapsed for most of Mr. Smith's supporters to pay their election bets. The assessment to cover the deficit should, therefore, be lightly felt.

Mr. Smith took occasion in his talk to emphasize the necessity and value of preserving a militant, effective democracy. We fully agree with him. And this democracy should be something more than a party of opposition. It has been that too long for its own health. A party of opposition seldom becomes the party in power. The greatest need of the Democrat party, if it is to be preserved as such, is the formation of a specific program along liberal lines, taking issue with policies of government of the Republican party. It must be a positive, concrete program, affirmative and not negative. Gov. Smith is doing his best to arouse national interest in this great enterprise, and for the good of the country it is eminently desirable that he should be successful.

RED TAPE
If the new administration that takes office next March can manage to work a little common sense into the red-tape-ridden matter of naturalization it will be a good thing. A change of that kind is very badly needed.
A Kansas woman, who had supposed all her life that she was a good American citizen, recently applied for a passport so that she could make a Mediterranean tour and discovered that she is a woman without a country. Her parents brought her to this country when she was 11 months old, and she has been here ever since. A month or so after her 21st birthday, her father became a naturalized citizen.
The ordinary mortal would suppose that she would be a citizen by this time. But she isn't. Some inspired bureaucrat has ruled that she is not an American.
Let's hope this red tape can be replaced by a little common sense.

INVESTIGATING PROHIBITION
During the progress of the campaign Mr. Hoover frankly admitted the existence of grave evils in prohibition enforcement. He promised that if elected he would endeavor to find out the exact measure and nature of these evils and to correct them so far as possible. That he intends to make good this commitment is shown by the Washington dispatch which announces his purpose to appoint a competent and disinterested commission to make the investigation.

There are some who will contend that it is impossible to obtain an unprejudiced inquiry. There are others still more cynical who hold that the facts are all well known and that no investigation is needed. We think both viewpoints are wrong. Most of the information available to the public touching enforcement and the workings of prohibition is partisan and supplied by either its advocates or opponents. The statements of one are quite as extreme as the other. What the country needs is an honest, frank, uncolored picture of the results of prohibition which will give impartial consideration to the benefits as well as to its evils. It is only by having the truth and looking it squarely in the face that the country will be able to act intelligently in the final solution of the liquor problem and in adopting a sensible course.

Everyone admits prohibition is still an experiment. It will remain a governmental and political issue until it is taken out of the field of experimentation and what may be regarded as a permanent policy approved. The main requisite of the Hoover investigation is that it should be one in which the public shall have confidence. If the personnel of the committee and its activities are of this character its work will be of great public value.

A FINE DISTINCTION
Grover Whalen, new police commissioner of New York city, is waging a vigorous war on criminal speakies and dealers in alleged "poison liquor," but not, Mr. Whalen emphasizes, on mere prohibition violators. He is not a prohibition enforcer, he is careful to say; he is fighting gangsters and poisoners.
Mr. Whalen is a notable business man and a very high type of big city politician. His fine distinction as between purveyors of booze who sell to gangsters and purveyors who sell to "orderly" night club patrons and honest folk instances a big city point of view—to wit, that bootlegging and prohibition violations in themselves are no crime, and that the harmless and harmful branches of lawlessness can be kept separated.

Sooner or later the fact will be borne in upon metropolitan residents, and governments that it is impossible to maintain any dead line in this slippery business. The "orderly" type is orderly only because it is momentarily profitable; it crosses over into crime very easily. Hijackings, murders and gang terrorism growing out of bootlegging will continue so long as bootlegging, highbrow or low, is tolerated. As for "poison liquor," Mr. Whalen by perusing the reports of liquor confiscations in Massachusetts could have learned that the chief poison in all deaths from intoxicants is just plain alcohol. The bootlegger who leaves a little fusel oil or denaturant in his booze is painting the lily. That isn't necessary to provide a corpus delicti.

IMPROVING ON NATURE
Science has improved on nature in the fight to save the life of King George of England. London air in mid-winter, even without its large soot content, is raw and cold and not healthful for anyone suffering from respiratory illness. Yet the king is breathing warm, pure air and is receiving the beneficial effects of sun baths, both supplied by modern science.
The air is drawn from pipes in the palace garden. It is first washed in a constant shower of icy water, containing a germicide. Then it is dried by a process of condensation and warmed over steam-heated plates to the required temperature. Next it is given the correct humidity by the addition of steam. Ozone is added as needed. This correctly constituted air is pumped directly into the sick room.
The sunlight, of course, is supplied by ultra-violet rays. Perhaps, in time, all hospitals will supply patients with perfect air and sunshine. If, also, the smoke nuisance in cities is overcome, people on the streets will get more sunlight and better air than city-dwellers get now anywhere.

POST-TONIC
The Remedy is Worse Than the Malady
The White House cook must be wondering by now where Cal got his reputation for economy. Do you suppose that he or she or them, go to bed nights dreaming of big stacks of flapjacks? Imagine 21 senators to breakfast at a shot! And everyone busy filibustering against the quilting hour. Anyway, Cal's doing his share toward farm relief insofar as the farmers specializing in buckwheat, hogs and maple sugar are concerned.

Some of those talking marathons are going to be mighty disappointed. They can't all be senators, or even congressmen. Think of all that training wasted. Glass blowing and auctioneering are the next best bets.

"NO MATTER WHERE"
To be no matter where, a man;
To live as right as I can,
To use the talents I possess,
To make others realize happiness.
To take life as it's given me,
To give to the world what I can see.
To have no place with-in,
To stoop to unseen shame and sin.
To be with-out doubt, pretence and sham.
To be no matter where, a man.

"Is it cruelty if hubby gets skirt length?" asks a headline. No, I say, it's the utmost of courage.

And another headline says that "Sheriff thinks night patrol of roads desirable." Some parkers won't agree with him.
I see by the papers that filling stations are unpopular in Syria. They can't have developed any distinct architectural styles in Syria.

Visitor: "We're getting up a raffle for a poor old man. Won't you buy a ticket, my dear?"
Sweet Thing: "Merely, no! What would I do with him if I won him?"
She: "I'll never marry a man whose fortune hasn't at least five ciphers in it!"
He (exultingly): "Oh, darling! mine's all ciphers."

Sandy was a leader of the kirk. His increasing redness of nose very much alarmed his brother elders, and a delegation waited on him to inquire the reason for the increasing color.
Sandy explained thus: "It is glowing with pride at never putting itself in anybody's business."

"I tell my wife everything, absolutely everything," said Smith proudly.
"Ever tell her a lie?"
"Didn't I say that I tell her everything?"

LOOKING BACKWARD
TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Friday, Jan. 22, 1904
The Grocers Union held its annual meeting the previous night at which the following officers were elected: President, S. C. Shannon; vice president, S. N. Fish; secretary, E. C. Otto; treasurer, W. L. Rhodes.
Resolutions had been issued for the marriage of Miss Willie Easton, a former teacher in the Fourth district schools and Rudolph Schaefer of Clayton.
A number of young people surprised M. E. Peterson the previous night at his home, 574 Pacific-st, in honor of his birthday anniversary.
Alderman Charles Sauter and Henry Nabbe-feldt attended the poultry show at Oshkosh the previous day.
Mrs. Charles Marsch was hostess to the S. S. club the previous day. Mrs. Renner and Mrs. Pearce won the honors and Mrs. D. Breitschneider was awarded the actor's prize.
L. K. Marinette, had leased the Nic Wetland building on College-ave and was to operate a fur store in that building.

TEN YEARS AGO

Twenty-five countries were to be formally represented at the peace conference the following day. It was officially announced that day.
Mr. and Mrs. Williams Voss were surprised by 25 friends at their home on Newberry-st, the previous Sunday evening in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary.

Views Of The News
A POOR PLACE FOR THE YOUNG
The badly-scrambled situation in the New York metropolitan area is strikingly emphasized in a current bulletin from the Regional Plan Association of New York.
This bulletin points out that the factory towns, where living conditions are the poorest, have the highest percentage of children, while residential towns, where conditions are good, have the lowest. In such a manufacturing town as Perth Amboy, for instance, 46 per cent of the population is under 20; in a residential town like East Orange, only 20 per cent are under 20.
A big city and its environs may constitute an inspiring place for adults to live. But this bulletin only emphasizes what has long been obvious; it is apt to be a pretty poor place for the youngsters.
A SUMMER WHITE HOUSE
This Congress—or the next one of this one is too busy—would do well to give serious consideration to President Coolidge's suggestion that the country establish a summer White House.
In the old days, Americans didn't like to set their president up too high. It smacked of royalty. But we have reached a more sensible viewpoint now, and the logic of President Coolidge's suggestion is unmistakable.
Our president has a winning job. The least we can do is help him conserve his strength by providing him with a haven of rest in the hot months. A summer White House in the hills, where the air would be cooler and the nation's work could be done under less trying conditions, would be a boon to an over-worked, tired chief executive.

BALM IS JUST BALM
Please tell me is aspirin has any curative properties at all or is it a dangerous drug, asks one correspondent, and another inquires about the use aspirin as a headache reliever and whether it is quite harmless. In the same mail a young woman says a specialist she consulted found she had sinusitis and advised her to take an aspirin tablet regularly three times a day.
Aspirin was formerly patented, but the patent expired a few years ago, and now anybody may manufacture and sell aspirin. It is one of the coarser derivatives and probably one of the safest of the pain-killers or analgesics of this class, though it is a grave mistake to assume that aspirin is quite harmless.
Aspirin is chemically acetyl salicylic acid ester, and has effects similar to those of other salicylic acid compounds, such as the familiar sodium salicylate which has been so much used in the treatment of "rheumatic," that is, painful conditions of the joints generally. In popular fancy this term "rheumatic," includes not only some vague condition that make painful joints, but also all sorts of pains or aches that people with a smattering of morbid information like to call "neuritis." Then, as one of the queries reminds us, aspirin has come into pretty popular use as a headache medicine. In fact, I believe it is now a common means of banishing the feelings or sensation of any kind of pain, soreness, discomfort or even anxiety to worry or fear of discomfort. That is, there are a good many people who have the aspirin habit and cannot do without the regular dose of the drug as a drug. It may be more accurate to say they will not do without the regular dose. The habit is by no means so enslaving as is the morphine habit. Yet there is no denying the fact that many unfortunate people learn to like the effect of aspirin and to resort to it regularly on one pretext or another.
Now I have just said that this drug is probably one of the safest of all the sense-deniers, pain-relievers, analgesics, "sedatives" or whatever you please to call such drugs. By this I mean that if I had a whopping headache or a mean pain in the neck and felt impelled to resort to a drug for temporary relief, I think I'd take a dose or two of aspirin in preference to any other remedy of the sort. On the other hand, I'd much prefer to worry along with a moderate headache or a fairly bearable pain in the neck without the bombarding assistance of a drug, if possible.
I do not hesitate to say that I believe the specialist or doctor who advised the young woman with sinusitis to take regular doses of aspirin, as though it were of some remedial value apart from the analgesic action, is a poor sort of doctor indeed. Likewise I say that in my judgment the use of aspirin as a remedy for what some of our old timers tell you is a "cold" is not only useless but rather dangerous, for there is some reason to believe that the drug may interfere with the natural immunizing process by which the body withstands and conquers infections. If the alleged "cold" is accompanied with greater pain or discomfort than one can endure, then aspirin is still one of the least dangerous drugs to use for relief of the pain or discomfort for the time being.
As no one can define what "rheumatic" means, it is scarcely necessary to point out that no medicine or other remedy is known to cure or remedy "rheumatic" conditions.
Aspirin is balm of a sort, but it is just balm and it never cures any disease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Not Yet But Soon
Can you refer me to a standard dictionary that contains the word "cri"? I have looked for it unsuccessfully in three non-technical dictionaries.
They all give the word "cold" in its ordinary acceptance. My opinion is that your statement that cri is anything a boor would call a cold, is far-fetched. To say "I caught cold" is a normal English and American idiom used by the educated and the illiterate; to say "I caught cri" is merely pedantry—you set yourself against the usage of a nation and seem to forget a fundamental democratic policy. That policy is "majority rules."—(R. L.)
ANS: Doubtless your argument is sound enough from the philological viewpoint, yet I still hope the dictionaries will contain the word "cri" before long. Usage must not prevent progress. Speaking of idioms, once I attended a little girl recently migrated from England. She had been a long while. I asked her mother how long the child had been sick and she said the child had never been sick at all. So there you are.
Quaint British Opinion
Have you given your readers the "low down" about the suggestion just now being propagated by the tobacco people, aided and abetted by eminent British and American medical authorities, that it is more healthful to finish a meal with a cigarette than it is to indulge in sweets? Some of us are inclined to think this may be right, but our view of the matter is necessarily tentative until we hear from Old Doctor Brady on it.
—(J. H. F.)
ANS:—Times are very bad in England just now. The miners are striking, and the doctors are grasping at straws. This probably accounts for the sudden discovery of the emolument possibilities of testimonial writing by the British medical nobility. This is something we health authorities here in America mastered—or were mastered by—long ago.
Petroleum Jelly Cure
I wish to thank you for advice you gave me last April when I wrote you about how I suffered with obstinate constipation. I began taking white petrolatum (I fancied this tasted less than common petroleum jelly), a spoonful or two daily, and it has freed me from the trouble altogether.
—(H. D. R.)
ANS: Another instance of the actual superiority of home remedies over the expensively touted kind. Soft petrolatum, also petroleum jelly, by proprietary trade names, is more efficacious as an intestinal lubricant than liquid petrolatum (also called mineral oil and various proprietary trade names), in my judgment. The repugnance to swallowing it is quickly overcome, as a rule, and the so-called white or clear petrolatum is less repugnant than the yellow kind.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON
BY HERBERT C. PLUMMER
Washington—When Rep. Tom Blanton of Texas parked his automobile on a Washington street and disputed the right of police to cite him for violation of a parking ordinance, a good example was afforded of what a delicate proposition police in this city are up against.
Mr. Blanton contended that he was on official business. While in this capacity, he held, he had the right to keep his car parked as long as necessary. He was right. The Constitution of the United States grants him such privilege.
The policeman in Washington must know his congressmen and his diplomats. Lack of such knowledge is risky business. He must know whom to arrest, when and where.
BIG IMMUNE LIST
Senators and representatives while on official business, diplomatic officers, members of their families and all the embassy employees registered with the state department are privileged from arrest.

Law violations on the part of any foreign envoy or those under him are reported to the state department, and then taken up either with the offender's embassy, if an attaché, or with the country direct, if the guilty one is the ranking representative.
The automobiles of diplomats are easy to pick out on the streets of Washington. Their license numbers are low and without letters. All of them bear plates marked "diplomat." Cars of members of congress are marked "congressional" and carry a number.
The superintendent of the Washington police will tell you that it is seldom any trouble arises from those immune from arrest. Especially is this true among the diplomats. They are more than anxious to cooperate.
WHITE HOUSE POLICE
The president has his own police force.
The White house police force was established in 1922 and is under his sole control. It consists of one sergeant in control, two under-sergeants and thirty privates, appointed by the chief executive from lists submitted to him by the superintendent of the metropolitan police. Their duties are confined to the White house, and they are under the direct supervision of an officer designated by the president.
The safety of the District of Columbia is in the hands of a division known as the metropolitan police.

MEN'S WEAR

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ASHTORETH ASHIE is spending the most exciting evening of her life in a little house on the top of a mountain with a man who apparently is going to make love exclusively.

Ashotheth is a stenographer from Boston. The man is HOLIS HART, her multi-millionaire employer. They have met by accident in Dominican, a little island in the West Indies.

Ashotheth, who has been ill, is taking a cruise. Hart has stopped off en route to South America, and found the place so charming that he has taken a house and means to stay a while. They are delighted to see each other, and Ashotheth purposely misses the boat in order to stay on the island. She pretends of course, that it was an accident. And Mr. Hart seems not to suspect her little ruse.

They have been sitting on the gallery for hours, exchanging confidences.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII

THEY sat in silence. And the only sound that broke the stillness of the night was the mournful cooing of a lonely little mountain dove.

Ashotheth shivered. And presently—for no reason at all—she began, very quietly, to cry.

"Why Ashotheth—my—dear—what is the matter, child?" Holis was tenderly compassionate. "You're not frightened, dear?"

"I—I don't know," she sobbed. "It—it's nothing."

"You're nervous," he said. "It's that plaintive dove, sobbing in the dark. I think there's not a sadder sound in the world."

"I—I guess I'm lonely myself," she whispered. "Sometimes I miss daddy so much!"

"Of course you do," he agreed gently. "And no wonder you're upset, little girl."

"It's not just daddy either," she said. "It's Momma and everything."

"I know," he murmured. "And that little dove up on the mountain was simply the last straw."

"You're the understandingest man," she told him and pressed his fingers gratefully. "I won't be silly any more. Don't you hate girls who cry?"

"Well, usually," he admitted, "they are rather sloppy. But I think you're adorable, whatever you do."

Ashotheth powdered her nose vigorously.

"I'm glad it's dark," she confessed. "My nose always gets red when I cry—and there's nothing adorable about that, I assure you. I wish I was one of those women who weep artistically. It must be a great asset."

"I should imagine," he laughed, "it would take a lot of home work."

"Yes, I suppose so," she sighed. "And I've no technique at all. Movie actresses practice in front of their mirrors. Maybe that would help. It must be wonderful to just have your eyes well up with tears that never spill. And your mouth sort of quiver and your throat palpitate. And your nose never get red at all. Nor your face homely."

Holis Hart smiled in the darkness. "An artistic triumph," he conceded. "But not much of a fling emotionally speaking. I suppose, though, that when a girl's weeping for effect it's not an emotional debut at all. Part of the act, as it were. And the whole blooming show put on for the benefit of some hard-hearted male. After all, a woman hasn't any weapon like tears. Now dry yours, like a good child and I'll sing you a song."

He picked up his guitar and strummed softly. "Don't cry, little girl, don't cry. They have broken your heart, I know."

"Stop it!" she threatened, "or I'll cry some more."

"Well, talk to me then," he commanded. "Tell me some more about your mother. Does she still dream about Cleopatra and Dido?"

But Ashotheth had told all she proposed telling about Maizie.

"No, I don't think so," she said. "Anyhow, she doesn't talk about it, if she does."

"Does she still believe in reincarnation?" he asked.

"Well, not exactly. That is—honestly, I hardly know. She never mentions it, you see. But she still insists that Ashotheth is a lucky name and that I'm to be blessed with love and happiness. Gifts, I suppose, of Lady Moon."

"That's a pretty notion," he approved. "And I think Ashotheth is a beautiful name, you know."

"I've always heard it myself until lately," she confessed. "It made me fearfully self-conscious when I was little. I always had to explain it to everybody. People were forever asking what it meant. Eventually of course, it was shortened to Ash. And that's such a grubby name. I simply abominate it."

"It doesn't suit you," he said and fell silent for a while.

"I suppose a lovely name for you. Shall I tell you?"

"A name you made up yourself?" she cried. "Just for me?"

"It's something you reminded me of," he said. "The first time I saw you. It's a name that wouldn't fit another girl in all the world quite as it fits you."

"What is it?" she demanded excitedly.

"Orchid," he told her softly. "You know, my dear, there isn't a flower in all the world quite so much like you. So charming. And remote. Such a cool, exquisite thing."

He spoke very quietly. And raised his fingers to his lips and kissed them gently.

Ashotheth drew her feet up and tucked them under her. She loved the way he made her feel. So little and childish. And as if, by all rights she should be protected and adored. She wondered if he was making love to her.

"It's a beautiful name," she said. "I love it."

"Then I shall call you Orchid," he told her. "It will be my little tender name for you. My small, secret name. Shall you like that?"

"Oh, that would be nice," she exclaimed. She was beginning to feel like a heroine in a rather exotic novel. A poor little stenographer! Alone with a millionaire on a lonely island! In a little bit of a house on top of the world! With nobody around nobody, that is, but 10 or 12 servants—and Ashotheth supposed they didn't count.

"My goodness!" she cried. "I just happened to think. I'm thousands of miles from home—and I haven't even a toothbrush! Or a nightgown."

"Oh, I guess we can fix you up," he consoled her. "I've a few toilet things. And you can take reefs in my orchid satin pajamas."

She wondered if she ought to propose going to bed pretty soon. Or if the suggestion should come from Mr. Hart. And where her room was. And if his was near it. And if the servants slept in the house. Or if, perhaps, they'd be there quite alone.

It was all thoroughly exciting she thought, and quite like the movies.

"I told Hester to put some orchids in your room," he was saying. "There was a great cluster of them on the mango tree. Pure white. Tomorrow I shall pick some for you, and pin them in those coils you wear—one behind each ear. I like the way you wear your hair, Orchid."

"Mother thought I was awfully foolish not to bob it," she told him. "But I've always known I wasn't a bob-haired model."

"No," he said. "You're not."

"Do you like short hair?" she asked.

"Oh, it's all right on some people," he answered carelessly. "Don't you ever cut yours, though, Orchid."

"No, I won't," she promised. "And don't you ever rouge your cheeks, either," he counseled.

"No," she said. "Make-up's not my type."

He looked at her curiously.

"What a wise young person she is!" he bantered.

"Daddy hated cosmetics," she told him. "He didn't want me even to use powder. You see—" she hesitated.

"Yes," he prompted.

"Well, mother's an awfully different type," she floundered. "And mumsie uses sort of a lot of rouge and stuff. And father got so he simply hated it. You see, Holis, my father was a man with very decided opinions. I absolutely worshipped him, and I suppose he inspired me a great deal."

"But your mother?" he asked.

"Didn't he ever ask her to refrain from cosmetics?"

"Oh, yes," admitted Ashotheth. "But mother thought he was sort of an old fogy, and she didn't pay any attention. She loved him like everything. Holis. She'd simply have died for him. But—well, mother and father weren't a bit alike. They never really understood each other, I think."

They were silent again for a little. And Ashotheth wondered if Holis was revolving her mother in his mind. What sort of a picture had she conveyed now of Maizie? And what would he think of her if he should ever meet her? Painted and garish, in her purple velvet suit. Why couldn't she tell him the truth? She might say something like this:

"Holis," she might say, "I've been an absolute beast about my mother. I've lied and I've pretended. And I'm not worthy to shine her blessed shoes! She's the dearest, kindest woman that ever lived. She's got a cut working by the day. She's shined stoves and scrubbed floors. And spent her hard-earned money to buy me silk stockings on a patent leather pump. She's worked her fingers to the bone for me. She's good and loyal, and adorable, above all women."

"And I'm ashamed of her because she makes the most awful grammatical mistakes. And dyes her hair. And uses too much makeup. And wears a purple velvet suit. And acts exactly like the genuine, simple soul she is."

"She's the salt of the earth—that's what my mother is. And I'm a stupid, ignorant little soul—pretending to all manner of things. My mother is a grand woman. And I'm nothing but a make-believe lady."

Holis broke in upon her thoughts.

"Would you tell me about your father?" he asked. "Or had you rather not talk about him, Orchid?"

"Oh, I love to talk about him!" she cried. "I told you daddy was a man in a million. Holis. Shall I tell you a secret that I've never told another soul in this world?"

"Why if you would care to," he answered. "I should be profoundly touched, I am sure."

"Well, father left a letter for me," she told him. "A most remarkable sort of a letter. I haven't shown it to anybody—not even mother. In fact," she added honestly, "mother is probably the last person on earth I ever would show it to. I carried it around with me until it was almost worn out. It's in a little box now, in the bottom of my hat box, all tied up with tissue paper and ribbons. But I think I know it almost by heart."

Ashotheth paused, near tears again.

"I won't tell you the beginning," she said. "And there was a little catch in her voice. 'It was so awfully personal, and not meant for anybody at all but me. The rest, though, wasn't so private.'

"It was sort of daddy's idea about what a young girl should know."

"You're sure," interrupted Holis, "that you won't be sorry if you tell me?"

"Oh, no," she said. "I'd really like to. Sometimes, you know, it's blessed to be able to talk about things. Particularly secrets."

"I know," he said. "Then tell me, Orchid. And I shall appreciate your confidence with all my heart."

"You're not sleepy?" she asked.

"Sleepy?" he cried. "When I can talk with you? I should say not! I think, though, since we are going to sit up so long, I will speak to Hester. If you will excuse me for a moment."

He went, she noticed across the garden and down a little ravine.

"Hester!" he called. "Hester!"

The servants then did not sleep in the house. She was to be all alone with Holis Hart! . . . What would Maizie say? And Monty? And Sadie? Ashotheth put her arms about her shoulders and hugged herself. Fanny—the feeling it gave a girl, sleeping in the same house with a man. Just she and he.

(To Be Continued)

Ashotheth finds she has become very important to Holis Hart. Read the next chapter.

INSTALL "TALKIE" AT LOCAL THEATRE

New Equipment Costs Approximately $17,500, According to Manager

The new "talkie" or synchronous reproducing equipment for Bin's Appleton theatre has arrived, and installation will get underway immediately, according to Howard Whitley, manager. Numerous changes are to be made on the theatre building in connection with the installation of the equipment.

The second balcony of the theatre is to be remodeled, and parts of the main lobby, and side rooms will be remodeled and redecorated. Four heavy beams resting on concrete pillars in the basement will support the new operating booth on the second balcony.

The new operating booth will be 22 feet long, three times as large as the present one. A temporary installation will be made until the new booth is completed, so that shows may continue while construction work is in progress, according to Mr. Whitley. Robert Parkinson, present motion picture operator will be chief operator of the "talkie" machines, and Lloyd Root will be his assistant.

Two large horns are to be installed on the stage of the local theatre. The equipment will be attached to a large steel frame seven feet high which is to be mounted in the booth. The equipment will cost approximately $17,500.

MOTHERS WHO NURSE MUST DRINK MILK

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

ONE lives and learns—and some times gets a shock in the learning.

A young married woman with a three months' old baby remarked at a luncheon table: "Certainly I nurse my baby. It helps to keep me thin."

But observing her eat, I decided that it was not only baby that was keeping her thin. Untouched cream soup, half a lamb chop, a nibble of salad and a half a parfait told the rest of the tale. She was dieting!

"Shades of the first mother, what are we coming to?" thought I, interested in this new aspirant to Poirot models. So I ventured a question.

"It your baby well?"

"Well? Yes! Indeed. He's the cutest thing. We adore him. He's gotten now that he notices—"

"Is he fat?"

"N-not so very. But it's better to have a baby not too fat, don't you think? If they get too fat you can't carry them around. He gains about three or four ounces a week and just so he's gaining it's all right, I guess."

A TARGET FOR QUERIES

"I never thought you'd nurse your baby, Marty," said one of the girls. "Doesn't it tire you down?"

"Yes—it does. But I'll wear him some of these days. I'd do it now since he's got his start, but do you know I'd gain fifteen pounds. Peggy did, and mother says I'm just like her. I don't dare yet."

Well, in their own parlance, kind friends, I ask, wouldn't it slay you? I simply give up.

Perhaps that poor baby is getting along very well. Who knows? Three or four ounces a week isn't a bad gain, and she says he is well, so that's that.

But like the old farmer I must remark, "It isn't in nature. It's unnatural."

Her reason was abominable to begin with and even if the baby doesn't suffer, she will.

A nursing mother needs three whopping meals a day, and a light one at bed time. Besides, she needs a lot of extra milk and water. Both are fattening, but necessary.

A nursing mother needs as much food as a man doing heavy manual labor.

"SEX AND YOUTH"

BY M. R. EDDY

HELP FOR YOUTH

BY ALLENE SUMNER

Speaking of marriage and not marriage, Sherwood Eddy has a new book called "Sex and Youth" which should be fairly valuable to both youth and its elders. There are practical chapters on "Companionate Marriage;" "When to Marry;" "The Problem of the Unmarried Woman;" "Why Wait for Marriage;" "Sex Equality;" "Sexual Ethics;" "Monogamy," and others. The information is not amazingly fresh, but a fairly good condensation of what others have had to say on an important subject.

Spanish Furniture Must Have Colorful Background

Spanish architecture suggests the use of warm, rich color.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eleventh of a series of articles written for Post-Crescent and NEA Service by William H. Wilson, vice-president of the American Furniture Mart, and an acknowledged authority on interior decoration and period furniture.

BY WILLIAM H. WILSON

TO the man or woman who revels in rich, warm barbaric effects, let us commend the style of the Spanish Renaissance. It combines color with dignity.

Moors who invaded Spain in the year 711 A. D. brought with them a Mohammedan knowledge of work in iron and leather, and the heritage of that invasion lives today in Spanish furniture, in which beautiful iron and leather work, as well as inlays of tortoise shell, silver, brass and bone, abound.

Upholstery studied with brass nails is also typical of the period, while iron bracing is a distinctly Spanish detail.

It is best that the wall background be unpapered, a rough mottled stucco or smooth light tint, giving the effect most designedly. Parquet floors, or floor coverings giving the effect of parquet or tile add to the effect and if arched windows are available, the setting is complete. In a large room a heavy effect is more desirable than in a room of smaller dimensions.

The furniture, in general, should have straight lines, with a very few curves for contrast. Tables legs remind one of trestles, and iron bracing is used frequently. Frequently the seats of the chairs sag a bit. The carving is usually elaborate, with urns and birds offering frequent motifs. The most typical piece of Spanish furniture is the varqueno—a cabinet set on a standard formed like the letter H, with iron and brass ornamenting the hinges. In choosing upholstery the home-maker should choose between leather and brocaded stuffs.

With Spanish furniture in a Spanish room, the objects d'art available are, good tapestries, Mexican pottery, ship models (Old Spanish barkentines) and wrought iron or brass candelabra.

THE NEW Saint Sinner

Chief of Detectives Maguire made a painstaking survey of Crystal Hathaway's bedroom, pocketed the pathetic cards which the girl had enclosed in boxes of yellow roses sent to herself by herself, with the pretense that they came from "Pablo Valencio," and made detailed notes on the clothes which Faith told him the girl had evidently packed in her suitcase and taken with her.

"Now—what does Crystal Hathaway look like?" Maguire asked Faith briskly.

It was Cherry who answered eagerly. "Not very pretty, Mr. Maguire—though the newspapers will remedy that! Straight brown hair, which she kept marcelled. It must look a sight now if the kidnapers haven't supplied her with curling iron—"

"Cherry!" Faith rebuked her sister angrily. "Then, to Maguire, her voice quivering: "Crystal is not an unusual type, Mr. Maguire. I think she might be called a typical American girl—almost pretty, bobbed brown hair, marcelled, with a side part, large, expressive hazel eyes—"

"Her best feature?" Cherry interrupted contemptuously. "Crystal really has lovely blue eyes, if she'd let them rest a bit. Oh, I don't mean to be catty, but I think Detective Maguire wants a really helpful description. Her eyes are large and wide, very round, and she uses dark-brown mascara on her lashes. She took the mascara, as well as the rest of her make-up kit with her. She uses quite a lot of rouge—that orange-tint I kind, with geranium lipstick."

Detective Maguire grinned at her. "Height? Weight?" he inquired of Cherry.

"Five feet three inches tall," Cherry replied promptly. "And she weighs about a hundred and eighty pounds."

"Any reason to suppose she committed suicide?" Maguire almost snapped at Faith.

Faith blanched. "Suicide? I don't understand. . . . If she'd killed herself, who could have written the ransom letter?"

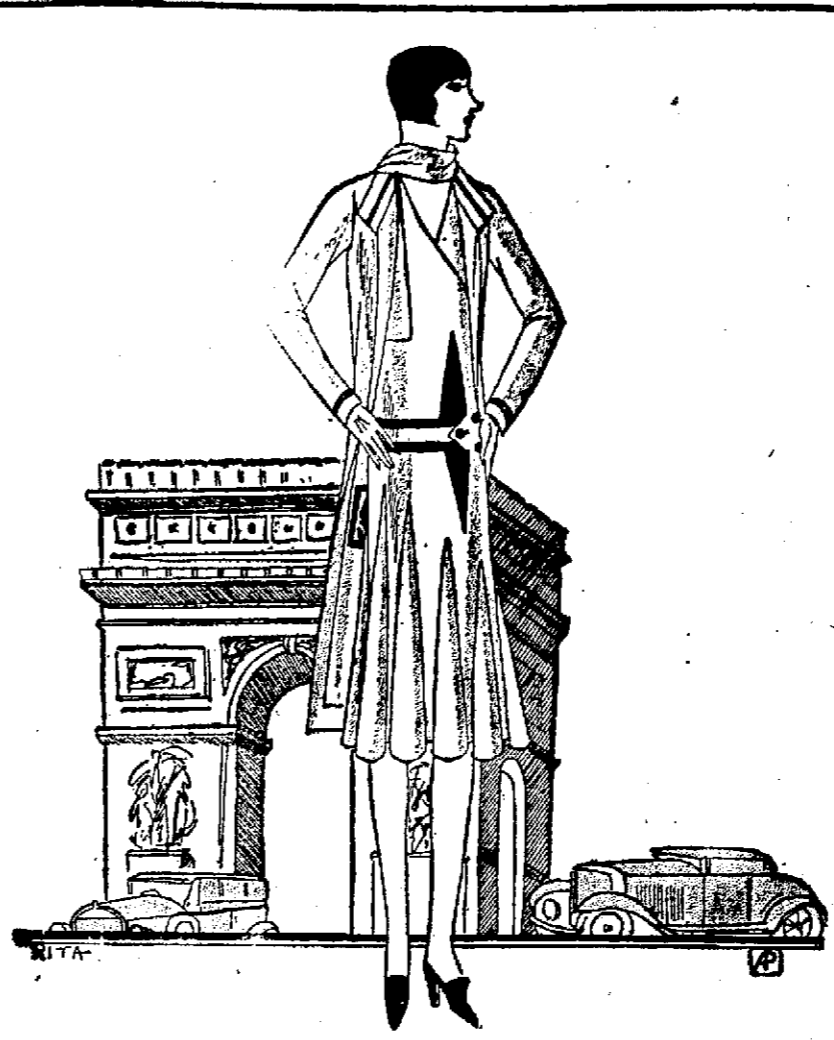

Maguire explained impatiently. "Got to consider every angle in a case like this. Some crook might have seen her do it or found her suitcase afterwards, and decided to capitalize on her disappearance."

"But—" Faith began feebly.

"Well, rather you want a bit easy, Maguire," Bob protested. "We've been up all night, and my wife is almost prostrated with grief and anxiety."

Maguire closed his notebook with a snap and returned it to his pocket. "Sorry to distress the lady, but this is a serious matter, Mr. Hathaway. A girl's body was found by some fishermen in the Marlboro river, just below the dam, this morning about five o'clock. She was still un-identified when I left headquarters."

Godets Vary in Length

Interesting coat linings are a mark of style today. Premet is showing coats with monograms embroidered on the side front of the lining. One ensemble at Premet's has touches of dark red on dress and coat with an embroidered monogram in red. The coat is straight over a dress with half a dozen godets of graduated length in the skirt and incrustations of red around the hips. This tendency to carry out the same trimming touches in coat and dress is strengthening as spring models are forecast. Sometimes it is applications of the dress material on collar and cuffs of the coat, or a lining to match.

Menus For Sick Basis Of Meals For Family

EDITOR'S NOTE: Food for the influenza victim must be prepared with unusual care. Menus for the sick person . . . how to prepare his meals . . . how to cook easily for the rest of the family at the same time . . . this information is given in a series of eight articles which Sister Mary and an expert dietitian have written for the Post-Crescent.

Physicians say to treat influenza with liquid food. These articles, the first of which appears below, show how liquid food can be made a part of the menus for the "well" members of the family—thus saving work for the housewife. Today's article contains a luncheon suggestion, with recipes.

Four eggs, 2 lemons, 3-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons hot water, few grains salt.

Grate rind of one lemon and squeeze juice from both. Separate yolks from whites of eggs and put yolks in top of double boiler. Beat whites until stiff and dry and fold in half the sugar. All salt to whites when starting to beat them. Beat yolks well, gradually beating in lemon juice and grated rind, sugar and hot water. Cook and stir over boiling water for two or three minutes or until thick. Remove from heat and fold in prepared whites of eggs. Arrange in individual dishes, chill and serve.

LADY ASTOR USED CRACKER TIN FOR MIRROR

LONDON.—(P)—Lady Astor has made herself immensely popular with the waitresses in the House of Commons tea room by using their mirror, which is the top of a cracker tin.

"It is good enough for you. It is good enough for me," remarked the member of parliament from Virginia as she tucked a straying curl in position under her hat.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS—

Then Scouty said, "Don't make a fuss. You'll soon be like the rest of us. I rather like this being small. It's queer as it can be." When to the proper size he'd dropped, wee Clowny's shrinking promptly stopped. And then he cried, "I'm safe now, lads. Just take a look at me."

They all stood round and laughed a while. "My, but I'd hate to be na milic," said Coppy. "It would be a bit small. I'm too small for that now. In fact I hardly think that we are strong as we once used to be. When we have lost half of our size, it's bound to hurt somehow."

Then Carpy said, "What do we care? Let's ride once more, up in the air. Our engine still is near at hand. Let's try and start the thing." "Ha, ha," laughed Clowny. "We can't ride, 'cause we're too small to crawl inside. And, anyway, we haven't strength enough to start each monstrous wing."

"I have a plan," brave Scouty cried. "Just follow me! It shall be tried." He grabbed their little bottle that was full of darning stuff. "We'll pour this on our engine quick," said he. "It may work out real slick. The only thing I hope is now, that we have left enough."

So Scouty pulled the cork right out and, with a very merry shout, he splashed the funny liquid on the engine. Then came sighs. The Tynymites were thrilled to see the plan work. Coppy shouted, "Gee! Our engine now has shrunk up too. It's just 'bout half its size."

Fallacies Of Dry Law Are Refuted

FOUR popular fallacies regarding prohibition were presented and refuted by the Rev. Ralph Alden Garrison of Memorial Presbyterian church at the meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. C. Nelson, 322 N. Oneida-st. The meeting was in observation of the ninth anniversary of national constitutional prohibition.

The fallacies cited by the Rev. Mr. Garrison were: Conditions are worse now than before prohibition; prohibition is unsound in principle; enforcement of the law has led to grave abuses; and prohibition encourages disrespect for law.

In refutation of these statements Mr. Garrison told members the best figures available showed that there is less than one-fourth as much liquor sold now than before the passage of the eighteenth amendment and that educators testify they have less trouble with college students now than previously, despite the talk of hip flasks.

The speaker contended that the statement, prohibition is unsound in principle, is a fallacy because it has been voted by the people and it is not the only law that regulates personal habits and practices for the good of the public. There is a major truth in the third fallacy, it was said for it is almost inevitable in view of the fact that dealers in the liquor traffic have always been law violators under any plan of regulation.

VIOLATION NO ARGUMENT
All laws are violated by some people, yet this can be no argument for annulling laws, was the argument advanced by Mr. Garrison in tearing down the fourth fallacy he advanced, that is, prohibition encourages disrespect for laws.

Two encouragements for supporters of the dry law were enumerated. They were the election of Hoover on a dry platform, with his promise of enforcement of the law and the large increase of funds to enforce the law recommended by the appropriation committee of the Senate.

Quotations from authorities and statisticians were offered in support of each point made by Mr. Garrison, who also, described conditions in Canada asserting that they are much worse than before government control of liquor.

A trio composed of Mrs. C. Reineck, Mrs. Mable Meyer and Mrs. Stewart Leuchars sang a group of songs and devotionals were led by Mrs. Frank Salberbach. OPERATE WITH MAGNET

Montreal—An operation was performed here on a Canadian war veteran with the help of a magnet. The vet had been troubled with a bullet in his lung for ten years and it was in such a position that it could not be reached with forceps. A powerful magnet was held on his chest to attract the nickel-jacketed bullet to a point within reach of the surgeon's instruments.

PARIS STUDIES GAS DEFENSE IN WARTIME

Paris—(AP)—Protection of civilian population against poison gas attacks in wartime has been taken under study by the Academy of Medicine.

The academy has decided that before proceeding to such details as seeking the best defense apparatus against poison gas it was necessary to begin a campaign to awaken public opinion and the various civil and military authorities to the dangers of poison gas in a new war.

M. Delepine, who read the report of the academy's committee which studied the problem, moved that the academy form a committee of civilians, soldiers and members of the Red Cross to study means of protection against these gases, as well as to show to the people the dangers involved.

The academy undertook the study of poison gases because "although the use of poison gas has been forbidden, it would seem prudent in case any power should fail to keep its agreements made."

LABOR COLLEGIANS LOOK UP MATERIAL FOR THREE DEBATES

Trades Unionists Learn How to Make Use of Library Facilities

Further study on the use of the library occupied the time of the labor college at the sixth regular meeting Thursday evening at the high school. The class spent the first part of the period learning how to use the card catalog, index system, cross references and the readers guide to periodic literature.

The last half of the period the class was divided into three groups to look up material for debates upon which they will work for the next two weeks. The first group will work on the question "Resolve that prohibition in the United States is a success;" the second, on the question "Resolve that collective bargaining is beneficial to the public;" and the third on the question "Resolve that injunctions in labor disputes be declared unconstitutional." The debates will be presented in class and also before a number of the trade unions in the city.

The second semester of the labor college will begin on Thursday evening, Feb. 7. Enrollment is now being taken for the class. H. H. Heible, principal of the high school, is in charge of the class.

STAGE And SCREEN

"A LADY OF CHANCE"

She was a crafty little gold digger until—

Until a handsome young man came along and stole her heart just when she was trying her best to get rid of him.

That, in a few words, is a gist of the story of "A Lady of Chance," which, with Norma Shearer as its scintillating star, is the attraction at Brin's Appleton theatre for the final days' showing today.

"A Lady of Chance" is a decidedly different type of Shearer picture, and brings this clever player's real dramatic ability to the fore more strongly than any play she has ever had. It carries a goodly share of heart interest, and her romantic scenes with Johnny Mack Brown—that good looking young leading man—are extremely interesting.

Adapted from the story by Leroy Scott, "A Lady of Chance" shows how a witty young miss takes the hearts and bankrolls of lonesome men, in an innocent manner, by employing the old badger game tactics. All goes well until the girl meets a young fellow who looks like easy money. She marries him for his bankroll and then finds out he hasn't anything except a none too promising cement business.

Under her loving inspiration, however, his fortune begins to pick up and when it has reached quite respectable proportions, her crook friends, not averse to sharing her good luck, appear on the scene for blackmail purposes. These two roles are played in a convincingly menacing manner by Lowell Sherman and Gwen Lee.

They threaten to "tell all" to the young husband. Dolly (Miss Shearer) forestalls them and so the two newlyweds instead of going their different ways in sorrow are brought together in a closer bond than ever. By all means see "A Lady of Chance." It's worth while and decidedly entertaining.

It wasn't long after she got her divorce from the young Earl of Northesk that the former Jessica Brown, onetime Broadway chorus girl, again heard the wedding bells. SEEK MAN HERE WHO IS WANTED IN EAST

Police here Friday received a request from the police of Kearny, N. J., to look for Edward Block, 30, who is wanted there for non-support and desertion. Block, it was said, is somewhere in Wisconsin or Illinois. He is about six feet tall and weighs between 180 and 190 pounds. He has brown eyes and hair. He is an expert mechanic and insurance adjuster and may be employed at either of these jobs. He carries an Elk lodge card and may attempt to affiliate with local Elks.

WANT GIRL PUPILS TO JOIN HEALTH PROJECT

Girls of the rural schools of Outagamie county in a bulletin issued by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, are urged to enter the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association 1929 health project. The project is endorsed by the state board of health. The health program starts Feb. 1 and is known as the Girl's Health Trail. It will run for four months. There will be a daily checking of routine activities and doing things that are necessary to bring vigor to the body. Girls are not up to par with boys in the matter of health, Miss Klein points out, in urging the teachers to enroll their students in the project. All material for the project is supplied free from Miss Klein's office.

OPPOSES TRADE OF STATE PROPERTY

Senator Doesn't Want to Trade State Land for Another Park Tract

Madison—(AP)—A bill which would prevent the state conservation commission from trading state-owned lands for the proposed Copper Falls state park site in northern Wisconsin, was introduced Thursday by Senator J. H. Carroll Glidden. His measure would require that the site be acquired only through payment of money. The conservation body and the land commission have for several months been negotiating for a trade of state-owned lands on the Flambeau river for the Copper Falls property, which belongs to a power company.

Senator Thomas M. Duncan Milwaukee, by resolution asked for a memorial to congress urging it to enact legislation for the development of Muscle Shoals for the benefit of all the people instead of turning it over to private companies for their benefit.

Another memorial to Congress asking it to pass Congressman E. E. Brown's bill to distribute more than $400,000,000 dollars of trucks and other wartime material to the various states for highway work was asked in a resolution by Senator Robert Caldwell, La.

Elimination of jury trials in insanity cases, and substitution of examinations by experts is asked in a bill brought in by Senator Glenn D. Roberts, Madison.

At the request of the state league of women voters, Senator Duncan asked for a memorial to Congress calling for enactment of the Sheppard-Towner maternity bill.

The death of five young people recently in Kenosha railroad crossing accident has led Senator William Marikham to ask for a joint committee to study the problem of crossing elimination. He said, in a resolution, that there are 7,500 unprotected crossings in the state, whose toll of human lives in the last two years has been 130 and 150.

A petition from the Kenosha-board opposing an increase in the state gasoline tax was brought to the attention of the Senate by Senator Conrad Shearer of that county.

ENGLISH CLASS TURNS TO ILLUSTRATING

Literature is literature, but the modern English class does not feel compelled to stick entirely to poetry, prose or drama or verbs, nouns and adjectives. At Wilson junior high school, where the "Merchant of Venice" is being studied in the English classes, many of the pupils have dropped from the study of verses and characters long enough to make wood and charcoal illustrations of what they are studying. Several models of the Elizabethan stage have been made and some students have constructed early English pageant wagons. One stage, made of wood, has four wood carved figures of Shylock, Antonio, the jailer and Bassanio.

Theatricals were made by Ethel Sedo, Melvin Pope, Robert McCoy, Doris Boettcher, Lyla Felton and Raymond Curtis and Watson by Hubert Boldt, Robert Sellers and Lawrence Wing.

$222,310 LOST IN FIRES IN APPLETON IN LAST 12 MONTHS

Zuehlke Fire Increased Loss Over $200,000 Over Previous Year

Appleton suffered a fire loss of $222,310.27 in 1928, an increase of more than $200,000 over 1927, according to the annual report of Louis McGillan, secretary to Fire Chief George P. McGillan.

The huge increase in the loss was brought about by the disastrous Irving Zuehlke store fire in January, 1928, with a damage of about $150,000. There were 220 fires during the year compared with 193 in 1927. The fire loss in 1927 was $22,142.28. In 1928, 17 fires were reported to which the department was not called. Fire losses for other years follow: 1926, $24,006.48; 1925, $27,898.08; 1924, $60,842.12; 1923, $12,176.99.

The month of January, 1928, was the busiest for the firemen, Mr. McGillan's report indicates, there being 28 fires in that month, February and April, in which there were 27 fires each, were close behind. The number of fires for other months follow: March, 25; May, 16; June, 10; July 12; August, 17; September, 9; October, 7; November, 17; December, 25.

Of the total fire loss for the year $150,470.74 was on contents and $71,839.53 was on buildings. Approximately 85 per cent of this loss was covered by insurance, Mr. McGillan estimates.

The loss for each month in 1928 follows: January, $158,301.87; February, $33,008.74; March, $7,875.74; April, $21,855.56; May, $1,282.58; June, $2,363; July, $5,533.77; August, $11,329.02; September, $209.52; October, $149.05; November, $376.49; December, $1,669.04.

Total value of buildings and contents in Appleton, which were threatened by fires during the year, is estimated by Mr. McGillan to be $3,707,080.45. Total insurance carried on the buildings and contents threatened by fire was $3,317,996.76.

Good for Children Who Are Pale, Puny

Mother and Dad—have you a pale, skinny, rundown child in your family? No, you can't say the youngster is seriously sick, but somehow he never seems to have the strength and energy to play like other kids, he seldom eats a hearty meal, just "tucks" at his food. He's way behind in his school work—often gets cross and restless.

Poor kiddie! All he needs is McCoy's Tablets—that stimulating health-builder and energizing tonic which gives his frail, sickly body and bones the nourishment he can't possibly get from his food.

If you need more flesh, are rundown, weak, nervous and feeling miserable you can get 60 McCoy's Tablets, for 60 cents at Schlicht Bros. or any drugstore in America. You can take these tablets for 30 days—then if you are not satisfied with the improvement in health—get your money back.

AUG CLUB OPENS ATTACK ON 4 CENT TAX ON GASOLINE

Milwaukee Motorists Say
To Owners Can't Afford
Another Tax

Milwaukee—Wisconsin motorists, pay almost $21,000,000 into the coffers of the state in 1928 for the privilege of maintaining and operating their cars, are now carrying in tax on "all that the traffic will bear."

An increase of 2 cents a gallon in the gasoline tax is virtually a 30 percent increase in the motorists' tax bill and such an increase would mean the extraction of more than $5,000,000 from automobile drivers' pockets a year.

TAX CALLED UNFAIR

Said forth these facts and circumstances showing how the motorists are taxed three ways on his automobile, in addition to real estate and income taxes, the Milwaukee Motor club, at its annual meeting Wednesday launched a campaign to prevent passage of a 4-cent gas tax measure.

"Take the position that such an increase in gasoline taxes is not only just, but unnecessary," said R. R. Rhinestone who was re-elected president of the organization for the third executive term. "The Motor club in accord with the proposed program for thorough highways in Wisconsin and we believe that a proper distribution of the present tax will make the construction of such highways possible."

PAYING $9 NOW

Mr. Rhinestone pointed out that the average motorist is giving little thought to the proposed gas tax raise because the tax is paid out in small amounts and, as a result, the automobile driver does not realize how much of his money has gone to the state in the course of a year.

At the present time, said Mr. Rhinestone, motorists are paying an average of annually through gas taxes and 2 cent increase will bring this to $9 a year. The figures cited by Mr. Rhinestone show the following taxes paid by Wisconsin motorists: Gasoline taxes $ 6,000,000 License fees 10,720,000 Personal property taxes 3,300,000 The average total tax paid by the motorist is $27.50," said Mr. Rhinestone. His average gas tax is $9, the average license fee is $14 and the average personal property tax is $4.50. For a period of ten years it is proposed to assess the motorists a total of $66,000,000, in addition to what they are already paying.

SUGGESTS NEW PROGRAM

Mr. Rhinestone declared that the present system of distribution is causing difficulty and he declared that the Motor club is prepared to present a program for a continuous highway system that may be developed out of the present tax yield. In the past he said, road construction has been "sporty" because of the county highway programs.

At the annual meeting of the club three factors, J. M. McLaughlin, A. A. Fiker and William S. Bowen, were elected for three year terms. After the meeting of the members the directors renamed Mr. Rhinestone as head of the organization and re-elected Judge John C. Karel vice president.

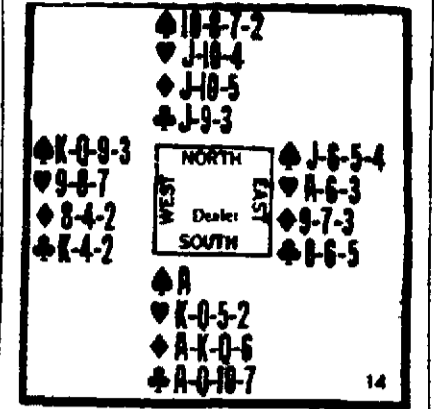

The two most important changes in the past one hundred years are the change from slow to quick transport and means of communication and from an illiterate to a literate public.

How To Play Bridge

BY Milton C. Watt

AUCTION BRIDGE AND CON-TRACT BRIDGE

Today we give Deal D and four questions.

QUESTIONS No. 13. What should the bidding be at Auction?
QUESTION No. 14. What should the bidding be at Contract?
QUESTION No. 15. What four cards should be played to the first trick?

THE ANSWERS

13. At Auction, South should obtain the contract with a bid of one No Trump.

14. At Contract, South has ample strength to bid three No Trumps and should obtain the contract with that bid. He has a singleton, but as it is an Ace and the hand counts 24, making the three bid advisable. It will be noted that if South started with only two, Dummy would not have the strength to jump to the game-going three.

15. To trick 1, West leads the Trey of Spades, North plays the Seven, East the Six, and South the Ace. If West's suit had been headed by the King, Dummy would have led the King. King-Queen. South knows that East has a Spade honor because West would not have led small from King-Queen-Jack. The adversaries must win the Ace of Hearts and three Spade tricks (but no more if, as Declarer properly assumes from the lead of the lowest Spade held by West, the adverse Spades are evenly divided). If Declarer also should lose King-Queen.

16. South knows that East has a Spade honor because West would not have led small from King-Queen-Jack. The adversaries must win the Ace of Hearts and three Spade tricks (but no more if, as Declarer properly assumes from the lead of the lowest Spade held by West, the adverse Spades are evenly divided). If Declarer also should lose King-Queen.

HEIFETZ COMING HERE ON FEB. 11

Master Violinist no Longer Considered Boy Prodigy
but Is True Artist

Joseph Heifetz, master violinist no longer considered a boy prodigy, but accepted as one of the greatest phenomena of the age, will appear in Appleton on Monday, Feb. 11, under auspices of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music. Heifetz returned to America in December to begin a series of 50 recitals, and looking him for Appleton is considered by music lovers of the vicinity a distinct triumph.

The name of Heifetz has been before the American public so long that it hardly seems credible that this great master of the violin is only 27 years old. When he made his American debut 11 years ago, he was looked upon as a boy prodigy, but by the time he was 16 years of age he was a seasoned and mature artist, with seven concert seasons behind him. The 12 years which have intervened since his first appearance in this country have been a continuous triumphal progress through France, Great Britain, Germany, Austria, Russia, Scandinavia, Australia and Mexico.

The flawless brilliancy of his technique and the sheer perfection of his intonation have come to be accepted just as Heifetz is accepted—as one of the great phenomena of the age. The consummate ease of his playing and the lightning deftness of his fingering have probably never been equaled in musical history.

An American built locomotive constructed by Peter Cooper of New York, was tried on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

And you'll never find Hills Bros Roasting Coffee in Bulk. Instead they Roast a few Pounds at a time by a Continuous Process

MEASURING and mixing the ingredients—controlling the heat—can be done much more exactly when you make several small waffles than mammoth ones.

As you follow this principle, in cooking all food, so Hills Bros. apply a similar rule to roasting coffee. They roast their coffee a few pounds at a time by a continuous process instead of in bulk. As a result every berry is roasted evenly and the rich flavor of the rare blend is developed to the utmost.

No other coffee can taste like Hills Bros. because none is roasted the same way. Controlled Roasting is Hills Bros.' process exclusively. And the full-bodied flavor and rich aroma come to you in all their fulness because Hills Bros. Coffee is packed in vacuum.

Coffee-lovers everywhere overwhelmingly prefer Hills Bros. Coffee. Ask for it by name and look for the Arab, Hills Bros.' famous trade-mark, on the can.

COFFEE

Your fuel dollars buy more heat when you spend them for Ford Coke

Product of the Ford Motor Company

ARE you dividing your fuel dollars three ways? Part for heat, part for ashes, part for soot and smoke? When you buy Ford Coke you cut out the soot and smoke and get heat instead.

Ford Coke is made by the Ford Motor Company from coal mined in Ford-owned mines. Materials that will not produce heat in your furnace are removed in the Ford coke-ovens. So you don't have to pay for their weight. Those are the materials that turn into smoke.

You'll find the quality of Ford Coke not only high but also uniform. You don't get a "good lot" one time and another "not so good" the next. That kind of variation cannot be permitted in Ford Coke. For it's used in the Ford industries. You benefit from their strict requirements.

An investment in Ford Coke buys more economical heat and sure satisfaction. Telephone your order.

HIGH SCHOOL AT MARINETTE FRIDAY FOR LEAGUE GAME

Shieldsmen Are Undeclared So Far in Valley Conference

Out for their third conference victory and an unblemished slate Appleton high school eagles will play Friday afternoon for Marinette where they will meet the northern high school five in the first game of the season between the two schools.

By virtue of their victories over other schools in the league, Sheboygan and Fond du Lac, the boys are picked as winners Friday. Marinette hasn't fared well although she forced East Green Bay to a four period overtime session last week before dropping the decision.

Coach Joseph Shields' aggregation has again gotten down to the serious business of winning basketball games following the defeat at Stevens Point a week ago. The loss doesn't affect the valley league standings but the highs had a good opinion of themselves and hated to lose to anyone, least of all a team they had figured wasn't quite in their class.

The outfit Shields is taking north will be the same that he has used in all other league games. Mike Gochbauer and Berg will be forwards and if they both can count baskets instead of one carrying the brunt, chances are the Orange will score heavily. Capt. Benny Iatoh will again jump center and work in as the third man on the offense.

The two guards will be the old reliable, Jack Schaefer and Bobby Kuntz. The two men so far have almost set a record for keeping opponents away from the basket, although Coach Shields is high in his praise of the defensive work of Gochbauer. He claims the big back haired youngster is easily the best running guard in the league and for that reason he hasn't shown at forward, letting his running make take part of the burden at tossing baskets.

Marinette, it is reported, will be weakened for Friday's game by the loss of its regular center. The youngster is suffering from pleurisy and unable to play.

"STRETCH" MURPHY MAY SET RECORD

Must Make Nine Points in Eight Games to Establish Mark

Chicago — (AP)—Purdue's "Big Po" of the hardwoods, Charles "Stretch" Murphy, has started out with such a dizzy rush that he may shatter every existing record for individual scoring in Big Ten basketball this season.

In four championship games, the six foot six inch Boilermaker center had looped 61 points or 72 points less than the all-time individual record, which was established by Johnny Mitchell of Ohio State in 1925. With eight more games still in play, Murphy needs but nine points a contest to tie the mark.

He apparently has clinched Big Ten scoring honors for 1929 as he is 22 points ahead of his nearest rival and teammate, Glen Harmonson, Boilermaker forward.

Another mark he is shooting at is the one for the most field goals tossed in a season. This was established by "Chuck" Carney of Illinois, who caged 60 in 1921. Murphy so far has bagged 21 field goals and 19 free throws.

Against Chicago this season, Murphy broke all Big Ten records for scoring in one game. In the first Chicago contest, he scored 11 field goals and three free throws. A week later, he bagged eight field goals and 10 free throws to better his previous record.

Play Portrays Life In Homestead Of Vermont

BY G. D. SEYMOUR

New York—In the kitchen of a Vermont homestead, where the kettle simmers on the range and a clementine pump drips soft and untempered water into the wooden sink, A. E. Thomas has placed a play dealing with the life of a Vermont family.

Here, a few miles south of the Canadian border, the simple righteously Yankee stock has concerned itself for generations only with wrestling a sustenance from the granite soil, until the Eighteenth amendment came. But as the play opens, James Belden, one of the more spirited local youths, has taken to piloting whiskey runners across the border over hilly sidelanes and he has offered John Carter, stout New England patriarch, $50 a week for the use of an old barn valuable to liquor trucksters as a way-station.

Carter, beset by honest debts, reluctantly consents. But his daughter Ann will have none of it, and she is soon aware what is going on. She threatens to shoot Belden if he comes around the Carter place again—and she does, to the extent of wounding him in the ribs. The odds, however, are too formidable—and by the end of Act III her father has been slain, an innocent bystander in a war between runners and hi-jackers; her younger brother is under arrest as an accomplice of the bootleggers and her elder brother is afflicted by opium liquor.

From this havoc she "salvages" what she can. The blind brother goes to an institution, the other gets out of jail, and young Belden, now a youth of some means, renounces bootlegging and its allied arts to win Ann and to make amends—a happy ending, considering the completeness of ruin from which it emerges.

Phyllis Povah as Ann, Allyn Joslyn as young Belden, and John T. Doyle as the elder Carter stand out in a cast which was acclaimed for its uniform excellence, and the play, paced a little more rapidly than its opening evening, was conceded to be absorbing and entertaining. It does not solve the prohibition question—but what does a theater-goer want for $3, when Mr. Durant and Mr. Hearst are offering thousands?

It is essentially a piece of dramatic reporting, with the author's conviction stated mildly and without haranguing, and it is reported with the direct and homely genuineness which has characterized other plays from the pen of A. E. Thomas, its author.

2 STUDENTS COMPLETE READING CIRCLE WORK

Two rural school students have completed their reading circle work for 1929 and will receive merit certificates, according to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools.

They are Lela Ziemer, student at Maple Lawn school, town of Cicero, and Ruby Feavel, student at Oak Leaf school, town of Seymour. They are two of the first students to complete their 1929 work.

ABOUT MONOGAMY

The novel by Ernest Pascal, which was a brisk seller a few seasons ago under the name of "The Marriage Bed," has been converted by its author into a play bearing the same title. Revealed to Broadway with a cast which Ann Davis and Allan Dinehart head and which Helen Chandler embellishes, it won acclaim in somewhat the same fashion that "Vermont" did—as an entertaining play, but not as a solution of anything.

"The Marriage Bed" deals with the virtues of monogamy. Its young husband, apparently firmly on his suddenly files with an enamored wife, and returns to confess his sins and ask a divorce. His wife greets calmly the news of his indiscretion and declines to give him his freedom. His mistress, unable to cope with such a stolid and unfeminine foe, goes her way, and at last Mary Boyd's husband comes home to her again.

JUNE IN JANUARY

"Polly" s Author Hammerstein's second musical comedy of the season, and a musicalization of the old farce, "Polly With a Past." It was set down by most of its primary hearers as an engaging piece because of its somewhat better than ordinary comedy, and the elaborateness of its scenic devices.

Chief among its newcomers is June—just June—English musical comedy actress of gentle, pleasant and graceful movement. Gus and Will, a tumbling pair of clowns, and the droll Fred Allen furnished most of the fun, and several sets were striking.

"Follow Thru," new Schwab and Mandel musical comedy, owes a lot to the middle west. Irene Deloy, its ingenue, is from Bloomington, Ill.; Zelma O'Neal, who sings and dances, hails from Rock Falls, same state, and John Becker, juvenile, came from Girard, Kas., and is a graduate of Northwestern university.

HIGH HEELS CAUSE OF FOOT TROUBLES

Corns, Warts, Calluses and Bunions Are Penalties of "Style"

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER

In "Lycelia," Dr. E. Van Duyn, physician to one of the best known girls' schools of this country, recently has considered the evidence against high heels.

She has found that young girls do not like to admit that shoes are in most instances the causes of corns, warts, calluses and bunions.

It is the opinion of most orthopedic surgeons that high heels are bad because they throw the leg into a position in which the circulation is interfered with, the posture bad, and strain placed upon ligaments which never were meant to bear it.

An examination of the members of the senior class in this school revealed that 39 per cent of 212 girls had had deformed feet on entrance into college.

At the time of graduation, 52 per cent had deformed feet, in many instances associated, according to Dr. Van Duyn, with the fact that more than half of these girls wear spike-heeled shoes for dress occasions, shoes too short for many other occasions and low-heeled shoes with broad toes and straightlines for sports.

Of the 38 girls who had practically normal feet, 37 either did not wear high heels or else wore them less than one-third of the time.

Twenty-one per cent of the girls suffered with backaches, the large majority of them being wearers of high heels.

Furthermore, Dr. Van Duyn was convinced from her study of these girls that the wearing of high heels was associated with fatigue and with much discomfort to the girls in other ways.

WIDE INTEREST IN KOHLER'S ELECTION

Kohler — An indication of the worldwide interest taken in Gov. Walter J. Kohler's election and inauguration is found in a translation of a news article that appeared in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic which just came received here from Oscar E. Trindler, Kohler's representative. "During the last elections taking place in the United States, in which the Republicans have won a clamorous triumph, the report asserts, 'there was elected as governor of Wisconsin, Mr. Walter J. Kohler, a man of wide sympathies for this country where he has important business interests.'"

APPOINT MEN WHO WILL BURN ELECTION BALLOTS

County Judge Fred V. Heinemann Thursday filed with John E. Hantschel the appointment of two men who will destroy the ballots cast in the county in the November election. They are Joseph Bayer, a Democrat, and Minot Huchins, a Republican. The destruction of the ballots will take place Saturday morning at the courthouse when they will be burned in the furnace. The men also will destroy nomination papers filed previous to the election.

placed on the fact that the wearing of high heels leads to much more danger of injuries from falls. When the heels are raised the tendency which holds the bones of the heel tends to contract so that a return to low heels will at first cause considerable discomfort and pain.

Foot defects are responsible for a vast amount of misery in modern life. Many of them can be avoided by much more attention to the wearing of proper shoes and shoes well fitted.

NEW YORKERS HOLD CONFAB WITH HERB

Hoover Anxious to Strengthen Party—Puzzles Over Patronage

Washington —(P)—Turning his attention again to the political situation in New York state, President-Elect Hoover had arranged conferences Friday with H. Edmond MacHold, chairman of the Empire state Republican national committee, and William H. Hill, who headed the Independent Hoover-for-President organization in New York.

Mr. Hoover already has had long interviews with other prominent New York Republicans, among them Charles D. Hilles, national committee man; Ogden Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, and Representative Hamilton Fish, and in his talks Friday he was expected to receive additional suggestions for the strengthening of the party machinery in that state.

While New York gave its electoral vote to Mr. Hoover last November, it elected a Democratic governor and returned another Democrat to the United States senate. As head of the Republican party in the nation, the president-elect naturally desires to see the lines of his own party so strengthened during the next two years that control of the state government may be recaptured.

PATRONAGE IS PUZZLE
The patronage situation in the Empire state also is regarded as presenting something of a problem to Mr. Hoover. Since both of the senators from New York are Democrats, he must look elsewhere for recommendations for major federal appointments for that state.

In such a situation the national committee usually is relied upon to a large extent, but gossip here has been that other in the party organization are looking for recognition in this respect. If such is the case, the next president will have to exercise diplomacy in order to maintain even the present measure of harmony within the party ranks.

Another New Yorker on the president-elect's calling list Friday was Albert Ottinger, former state attorney general, who was defeated for the governorship in the last election by Franklin D. Roosevelt. Reports here are that Mr. Ottinger is at least a receptive candidate for an important European diplomatic post.

Seven more members of congress were on the engagement list on this, the next to the last day of conferences to be held before Mr. Hoover departs for Florida Monday for an intended stay of a month.

Mr. Hoover had a third visit to the White House since his return from his good-will mission on his program Friday night. With Mrs. Hoover he was to be the dinner guest of President and Mrs. Coolidge.

GOVERNOR SMITH STARTS AS BANKER

Becomes Director of Bank in Which He Was the First Depositor

Universal Service Correspondent
New York—Alfred E. Smith is a banker.

The former governor Thursday became a director of the County Trust Company of New York.

Ultimately he may be chairman of the board of the 2-year-old institution, in which he was the first depositor.

In any event Smith purposes to try banking as a business. In so doing he will have the cordial cooperation of Chairman John J. Raskob of the democratic national committee and his friend, William F. Kenny and James J. Riordan, Raskob and Kenny are fellow directors. Riordan is president of the County Trust company and one of its founders. Vincent Astor is a director.

Smith's decision was reached Wednesday night at a conference with Raskob, Riordan and Kenny soon after the former presidential nominee uttered his nationwide radio appeal for help to cancel the $150,000 deficit in the democratic national committee treasury.

Smith was anxious to settle his business plans before starting for a vacation in Florida next Sunday. Smith, Riordan, Kenny and Raskob will journey to Florida in Kenny's private car and devote a month or two to recreation.

WANT TO EXTEND AIR MAIL SERVICE IN STATE

Milwaukee—John P. Wood, premier Wisconsin pilot, has called upon Milwaukee to aid other Wisconsin cities to get an air mail service.

At a meeting of the Association of Commerce air service committee at the Schroeder hotel, Mr. Wood reported various cities which joined in the petition last spring that resulted in the establishment of the present Fox River valley line, felt they could support air mail.

Mr. Wood mentioned Wausan, Appleton, Stevens Point, Sheboygan, Manitowish, Wisconsin Rapids and Kohler as being especially interested in gaining air mail service and suggested some of these might be included on the present branch line from Milwaukee to Fond du Lac. The committee indicated a state meeting may be called to draw up a petition to the postmaster general.

Carl Herzfeld, chairman of the air service committee, appointed Irving C. Buntman chairman of the sub-committee on air mails to succeed the late James W. Fick and said a campaign in the spring is in prospect to stimulate public interest in air mail. Tentative plans contemplate a campaign statewide in scope.

NEW SOLUTION OF BACK TAX PROBLEM

Would Convert Northern Lands into State Forest Reserves

Madison —(P)—A comprehensive program for solution of the delinquent land situation in northern Wisconsin, which provides for utilization of hundreds of thousands of acres of land for forests, game preserves and wild life refuges, was worked out by the special legislative forestry committee.

Senator George W. Blanchard of Edgerton, chairman, announced the program will lift the burden from taxpayers in northern Wisconsin who have been affected by the delinquent tax situation.

The committee discussed permitting registration of county owned land under the forest crop act without payment of 10 cents an acre imposed on private owners.

CONTRIBUTION BY STATE
On these lands, taken for delinquent taxes and registered under the forest crop act, the state would contribute the 10 cents an acre.

Another important consideration was the proposal that this session of the legislature enact a country zoning act which would prevent farmers from settling on land which is not suitable for agricultural purposes.

The purpose is to prevent farmers incurring a financial loss. The assembly rules committee today recommended nonconcurrence in the Schuman resolution, passed by the senate, placing an early deadline on the introduction of bills.

BOOST MUSIC CHARM
East Orange, N. J. — Proponents of a scheme to make instruction in music compulsory for county schools say it will reduce crime in the younger generation. "If you teach a boy to blow a saxophone," they say, "he'll never blow a safe."

IF RHEUMATIC BEGIN ON SALTS

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do the work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts, put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to your kidneys, remove body waste also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

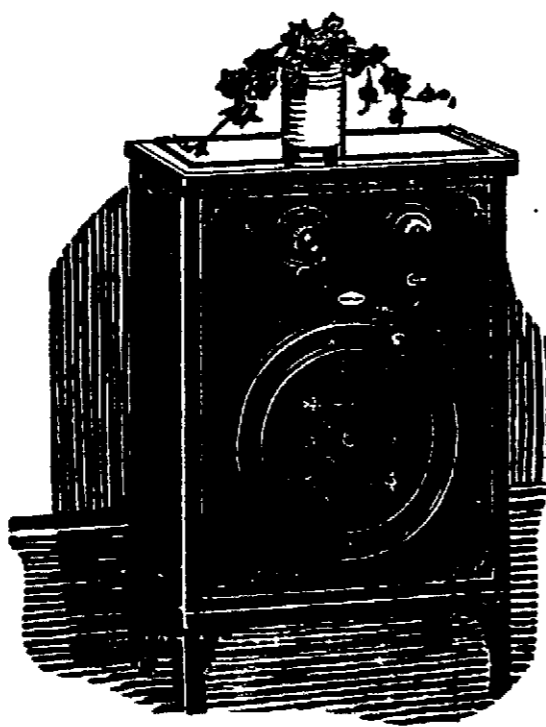

Announcing the NEW ELECTRO-DYNAMIC!

Of course you want an Electro-Dynamic set. Of course you want it to be an Atwater Kent. Now you can have it—and in your choice of table model or all-in-one set (completely Atwater Kent). And, as always, at the most moderate price for which fine radio can be purchased.

THE Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic!

The whole range of the grand organ or a full orchestra—the new Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic captures everything and reproduces everything. Its all-comprehensive realism you will appreciate instantly.

And this new radio is just as faithful to the human voice as it is to musical instruments. It no more suggests mechanical reproduction than does the trill of a lark. The singer, or announcer, or actor in a radio play, is—himself. You can't ask more than that!

MODEL 53, Electro-Dynamic all-in-one set. Compact lacquered cabinet. Fits so beautifully anywhere. Without tubes, $117.

Do you like to enjoy an orchestra or play from the best seat in the house? It's like that! Do you like to pick out the individual instruments and follow them as they weave their golden fabric? You can!

Do you like deep richness of tone? Do you like to hear the bass viol, the tuba and the drums—the bumble-bees of an orchestra—sound like the real thing—without over-emphasis anywhere?

As the music climbs from the caverns of the basses to the heights that only the violin and the piccolo can reach—do you want to know you are missing nothing?

Not only does the new Atwater Kent give you all this with finer, truer tone and ample volume made possible by Electro-Dynamic reproduction. It is—as you would expect from Atwater Kent—a very simple instrument. One cord to a lamp socket brings electricity to both receiver and speaker. One switch (on the receiver) turns everything on or off.

The Atwater Kent laboratory—which gave radio the true one dial, the compact, shielding case and so many other improvements—has worked a long time in perfecting the Electro-Dynamic. It was determined to achieve not just another example of the Electro-Dynamic principle but the perfection of it.

MODEL 46, the new all-electric receiver. Lacquer finished. Full-vision Dial. Uses 7 A. C. tubes and 1 rectifying tube, with double power tube stage. Without tubes, $83. MODEL E-2 (Electro-Dynamic) speaker. True to the whole range of music. $34.

When the laboratory engineers said: "Here it is. It's what we wanted," the factory found out how this new set could be made at an Atwater Kent price—which always means the very lowest price for fine radio.

And here it is! Compact. Good looking. Electrically, mechanically, and acoustically as good an instrument as can be. Made with Atwater Kent precision. Durable. Reliable. Perfected.

Your ears will tell you there is no finer reception. Your knowledge of values will tell you that only the demand for Atwater Kent Radio (now in more than 2,000,000 homes) could make possible such a price.

With the winter not yet half over, with evening after evening and year after year of entertainment yet to come, you just can't afford not to see and hear the Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic. Do it! Enjoy yours now.

WORLD WAR "ACE" OF FLYING CORPS NOW IS DIPLOMAT

French Veteran Is Flying on New Mission Seeking to Establish Friendliness

Washington (AP)—With wartime exploits of his heroic American flying comrades vivid in his memory, Major Georges Thénault, commander of the famous Lafayette Escadrille and now French air attaché at Washington, is flying on a new mission which seeks to strengthen bonds of friendship between the United States and France. He is a world war "ace" turned diplomat.

Six years as air attaché to the French embassy have brought to him such admiration, confidence and comradeship in America as he enjoyed while in command of that little group of American pilots, many of whom sacrificed their lives for France before the United States entered the world war.

His trim little monoplane, bearing the tri-color circle of France on its wings, will carry the Lafayette Escadrille's insignia on its fuselage in memory of the Americans who were his comrades in arms during the war. The monoplane, recently sent to the United States from France, is the immediate pride and joy of the French air attaché.

Hoping from city to city throughout the United States, visiting aircraft factories, conferring with aeronautical experts, and inspecting military air stations, Major Thénault keeps his government informed of American progress in the aircraft industry and at the same time has built up a large circle of "peace-time comrades" among American pilots.

Always reticent about his own achievements or long military career, Major Thénault is eager to tell of France's progress in aviation and her building of a military air force.

"We have aircraft engines second to none, and a military air force which compares favorably with the best in the world."

"The airplane should prove an important factor in building up strong bonds of friendship between nations, but too many fabulous things should be expected of this relatively young industry. It is well enough to expect great things of aviation, but we should not expect them delivered on some magic carpet over night. There are many problems to be solved before such projects as regular trans-Atlantic service can be expected."

The names of Prince, Lufbery, Rockwell, Chapman, and MacConnell—all American "aces" who died fighting with the Lafayette Escadrille in the early battles of the war—bring back vivid memories to their French commander whenever they are mentioned. Tributes to their daring heroism fairly flow from his lips—tributes to them as men and to America as a builder of men.

For 21 months in action on every important battlefield, the "Sioux," which the Escadrille chose as its insignia, built a reputation for inspiring terror in the enemy's ranks. Twenty-eight enemy planes were officially recorded as the Escadrille's prizes.

OLD HOME BECOMES DARWIN MEMORIAL

Author of Famous "Origin of Species" Wrote Work in Down House, England

Down, England (AP)—The house from which emanated one of the greatest controversial theories the world has ever known—evolution—is being turned into a memorial to Charles Darwin, creator of the theory.

Down House, in the green County of Kent, is where Darwin wrote the famous "Origin of Species."

The British Association for the Advancement of Science, which recently completed an important meeting at Glasgow, has bought the property by Dr. George Ruckelshaus Brown, fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons. Brown bought it from Prof. Charles Galton Darwin, grandson of the naturalist.

The acquisition of Down House as a memorial to Darwin brings to a head suggestions advanced on both the American and English sides of the Atlantic for the last quarter of a century. Even before the Andrew Carnegie thought of buying it and likewise of putting up a large money award for a decision on evolution, one way or the other. More recently Prof. H. P. Osborn, New York, advanced a plan for making an endowed center for evolutionary research out of Darwin's home.

Recently Down House has been used as a private school. Considerable changes will be made to bring it into conformity with its purpose, with its appearance when Darwin occupied it.

Dr. Brown has already assembled the nucleus of a Darwin collection for the old house. Chief articles are portraits of Darwin and Huxley painted by John Collier.

The house will become a library of works on evolution and on Darwin. The shelves of the old study will be filled with all editions of Darwin's works. Students will have an opportunity of consulting original documents and manuscripts concerning Darwin and his writings.

GERMAN SAYS WHALE HAS LARGEST BRAINS

Hamburg, Germany (AP)—The fishes had an inferior to the German Congress of Natural Sciences when the whale was declared the only mammal entitled to the record of possessing the largest brain. Professor W. Weyand, Hamburg neurologist, contended a prevalent belief that the largest brain claim is shared by whales, elephants and man. As a matter of fact, he said, the whale's brain is larger than that of any other animal. The human brain seldom exceeds an average weight of 1,250 to 1,400 grams in the male and 1,150 to 1,350 in the female.

Hollywood Movie Men Almost "Slip" On Ice

BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—Hollywood, priding itself on its almost inexhaustible bag of tricks and its tricksters galore, has tripped, figuratively speaking, on ice.

If a picture calls for a tightrope walker, a juggler, a steepclimber or a stunt aviator, usually the director has little difficulty in getting his man or girl. But ask for an ice skater, a young skater of 18 or so, at least, and there likely will be trouble.

There was, at any rate, in Alice White's new picture, "Hot Stuff," which despite its title includes frigid scenes requiring a number of skaters. Not "stunters," but simply men and women who could maneuver about the frozen surface without appearing ridiculous.

SKATERS SCARCE
The requirement seemed an easy one to fulfill, until the casting director began to call the roll of extras about the studio, revealing that none could skate. A thorough search had to be made elsewhere about town before enough players could be found for the rink work. There is a cue, somewhere in this, for the boosters of southern California's climate.

"FLAPJACK TUTOR"
A Los Angeles waitress now is "flapjack tutor" emerita to a screen celebrity. Emeritus, because her pupil proved quick and apt, and her services therefore were not long needed.

Wilma Banky's picture glorifying the American waitress puts the heroine in many costume romances in the simple garb of a child's window artist, who of course must know her flapjacks, from batter to plate via air line.

Miss Banky knew them not at all when she started work in the picture; now, thanks to the technical adviser called in from a local restaurant, and to much practice both in and out of the picture, she could fairly flip them in sleep, and the stacks of cakes she has flipped on the set, if laid end to end, probably could be proved to reach a long somewhere and back.

"The Rescue," picturization of the Joseph Conrad tale, has been seen in preview here, with Ronald Colman starred and Lili Damita, dark-eyed importation from France, as his leading lady. The picture has no dialog, but stirring sound effects were praised.

ARISTOCRAT WILL DEFEAT OPPONENT IN SPEAKER RACE

Longworth and Garner,
Candidates, Represent
Two Extremes

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C. — A son of an aristocratic family and a lad from a log cabin will be the opposing candidate for speaker of the House of Representatives when the special session of the seventy-first Congress meets, probably in April. And Horatio Alger to the contrary, withstanding, the son of the aristocratic family will win.

The son of the boy who was born in a log-cabin in Red River-co, Texas, will escort the son of aristocracy to the speaker's seat and will stand while his successful opponent is again inducted into office. For the two opposing candidates will be Representative Nicholas Longworth, Republican, of Ohio, and Representative John Nance Garner of Texas, or "Nick" and "Jack" to one another.

Between Longworth and Garner there is a personal friendship that is one of the most-talked-of in Congressional annals and between them there is a political feud of great intensity. They may be seen strolling together or visiting one another when the house is not in session, but friendship ceases when the gavel falls.

Longworth will be re-elected speaker because the Republican party is overwhelmingly in the majority in the house. Garner will receive the Democratic vote, the first Texas to be voted on for that high office since Roger G. Mills. Should the pendulum swing back and the Democratic capture the house in 1930, Garner would supplant Longworth as speaker. Meanwhile he will be Democratic floor leader.

were callow youth, with but one exception. The Republican split in 1812 sent Longworth down to defeat.

The Longworth-Garner personal friendship is of a quarter of a century duration. They came to Congress together in 1903. Longworth was then a bachelor, a Harvard man and fond of Washington society. Garner was a young married man, he had obtained his own education as best he might, and he did not give a tinker's continental for Washington social life. But they got to be buddies in their first term and buddies they have remained.

Longworth, soon after coming to Congress was married to Miss Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the President at a notable White House ceremony. Garner worked his way up slowly as all new members must. For continuous service now only Representative Foul of North Carolina outranks him. He has been acting leader for much of the time and will become the Democratic leader in his own right after March 4.

Garner ranks as the best rough and tumble debater in the House of Representatives. He prepares a speech and does his thinking on his feet. When it is known that Garner is going to speak it can be put down that Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth is going to be in the gallery to hear him.

A few days ago Garner was scheduled to make an attack on the tax refunds of Secretary Mellon. Mrs. Longworth telephoned to get the time he was to speak and was in the gallery when Garner arose.

"John Garner of Texas has a fighting heart,—one of the few members of either House with a fighting heart," Mrs. Longworth said. Both Garner and Longworth now rank as wealthy men. Garner bought Texas land and when it arose in value his fortunes rose. He also has always been an excellent trader. It is doubtful if either Longworth or Garner would give up the House for the Senate were a Senatorial to go offered them on a silver platter. Both like the work of the House.

STUDENTS ARE FIREMEN AFTER COLLEGE HOURS

Oklahoma City, Okla.—(P)—Thirty-six Oklahoma City university athletes are members of the local fire department.

"They serve on the night shift, attending class in the daytime. This way of earning an education was arranged for them by Ben G. Goff, Oklahoma City's fire chief, who is a former athlete and a graduate of the university. But he selects athletes for his department because he finds them ideal firemen."

"An athlete understands discipline and he is strong for the organization to which he belongs," Goff explains.

The students are employed throughout the year, and in summer they take the day shift, so they may have the nights off. They form a baseball team, which represents the department in the baseball season. In the winter the fire department turns to basketball in a local league, the players being fire-fighting students who are unable to make the varsity.

Chief Goff predicts many of the boys will remain firemen after they finish college.

FIRE CAN'T STOP THEM

Kalway, N. J.—They say there's nothing worse than a gossiping woman, and when two of them get into a telephone conversation, most anything can happen. Sworth Leonard, a grocer's delivery boy, attempted to telephone a fire alarm when he saw the home of Morris Spitzer aflame. Two gossiping women, Leonard says, refused to give him the wire. He finally ran to an alarm box.

Curling is one of the leading sports in Switzerland as it is in Scotland.

Andrew Jackson introduced the "spoils system" into national politics in 1829.

"Men Of The South Pole"

When the Aurora, depot ship, was blown far from her anchorage, nine men were left stranded on the mainland. Heroically they carried on their task of depot-laying, marching in all 950 miles through the frozen wastes. One of the party, Spencer Smith, collapsed with scurvy, and for 42 days his companions pulled him on the sledge only to see him die in the end.

By REA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-25.

Sir Ernest Shackleton made another voyage south in the Quest, setting out in September, 1921.

Shackleton had overstrained his heart and he died at sea trying to undertake the labors of men he thought more fatigued than himself.

Shackleton's body was buried in South Georgia, scene of his heroic feats of knight-errantry and splendid resource. Over the South Pole float two flags, Norwegian and British. The Antarctic, into which Commander Byrd and his party are now venturing, is a land of death and desolation, horror and anguish, but it calls forth men's noblest emotions.

Sketches and Synopses, Copyright, 1928, The Grollier Society (To Be Continued)

HOLD MOCK TRIAL AT ANNUAL MEETING OF CHURCH MEMBERS

Charges Are Answered by Reports of Officers of Congregational Church

A mock trial, the People versus the Congregational church, featured the annual meeting of the congregation at the church Thursday evening. The program and annual election of officers were preceded by a banquet.

Roy Marston and Joseph Koffend, Jr., impersonating two grouchers, brought action against the church, testifying that the church was not making proper use of its money. The plaintiffs' arguments were answered by the heads of the various church groups, in the form of annual reports, and after a most serious and solemn trial the judge, Homer Bowby, dismissed the cases. Dr. J. S. Reeve, as the Hon. Mr. Armistead, testified for the plaintiffs, and the eminent woman lawyer, Portia Crabtree, impersonated by Mrs. H. E. Peabody, was counsel for the defense.

The mock trial was arranged by a committee composed of Mrs. Ralph J. Watts, chairman; Mrs. John Lonsdorf, Dr. George Johnston, Mrs. W. H. Dean, and Prof. J. R. Frampont. Community singing, led by Dean Carl J. Waterman, was permitted during the trial without liability for contempt of court. Children were taken care of in the kindergarten room by Miss Mary Orblison and Rose Helm. In order that better order might be preserved in the court room.

BALANCES REPORTED

The annual reports which conclusively proved that not only was the church money being spent properly but that there were encouraging gains in all funds, were given by Roy Marston, representing the deacons; Miss Ruth Dawes, C. W. Y.; G. E. Buchanan, trustees; Miss Helen Schmidt, deaconesses; Lacey Horton, Sunday School; Harvey Young, Plymouth club; Silas Krueger, Men's Sunday Morning club; E. H. Jennings, music committee; Mrs. E. H. Jennings, Women's association; and Miss Annette Buchanan, Missionary society.

The following officers were elected: deaconesses, Mrs. Peter Thom, Mrs. H. J. Behnke, Mrs. Silas Krueger, Mrs. W. B. Basing, Mrs. L. C. Langstadt, Mrs. William Dean, Mrs. W. O. Thiede, Mrs. Margaret Klumb, Miss Lida Ashman, Mrs. F. M. Johnson, Mrs. Harry B. Leth, Mrs. Max E. Elias, Mrs. Charles Maesch, Mrs. Lela Smith, Mrs. Mary E. Basing, deaconesses at large, Mrs. William E. Caver and Mrs. William E. Roudsbush; deacons, G. E. Buchanan and Edward W. Young; trustees, Arthur H. H. Helbie, and R. J. Watts; cabinet members at large, Mrs. George Ashman, H. J. Ingold, and C. K. Boyer; church clerk, Miss Agnes Van Rydin; church secretary, Miss Hazel Conn; Sunday school superintendent, W. W. Slom; music department, C. E. Orblison; junior department, Lacey Horton; primary department, Mrs. Earl Baker; kindergarten, Mrs. Joseph Koffend, Jr.; cradle roll, Mrs. Werner Witter; and home department, Mrs. John Lonsdorf.

SNOW AND COLD WAVE WEEKEND PREDICTION

Fair and colder weather is on the way, according to predictions of the weatherman for the next 24 hours. Some snow may fall here Friday night, but the skies are clearing in the western states and winds are shifting from their position in the northwest.

Approximately three inches of snow fell here Friday morning, moderate temperatures continued to prevail. The moderate spell is to be short lived, however, and a moderate cold wave is sweeping across the country from the northwest.

The mercury registered 16 degrees above zero at 6 o'clock Friday morning, and at 12 o'clock noon, the thermometer stood at 20 degrees above zero.

THIEF, CORBETT WILL ATTEND C. OF C. MEET

Dealers from Wisconsin and upper Michigan were among those present at the meeting. New models of 1929 radios were unveiled at the conference.

A parcel of land in the town of Center will be sold at public auction by former Sheriff Otto Zuehlke in the corridor at the county courthouse at 10 o'clock Saturday morning to satisfy a mortgage foreclosure judgment granted in municipal court in November, 1928. The property is owned by John Griesbach, et al., and the mortgage is held by Mary Ellen Beck.

THETA SIGMA PHI INITIATES FOUR LAWRENCE COEDS

Upsilon chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary and professional journalistic fraternity for women at Lawrence college, held initiation services for four members at the Kappa Delta sorority rooms, E. Lawrence, Thursday afternoon. Those initiated were Dorothy Dana, Elizabeth Mealing and Bertha Greenberg, all Appleton students, and Nellie Chamberlain, Green Bay.

Election to Theta Sigma Phi is based upon excellence in the field of journalism and literary activity. All the initiates are on the Lawrence staff, semi-weekly college publication. Elizabeth Mealing teaches book reviews and the other three serve as reporters. Dorothy Dana is editor of the administration department of the 1929 Ariel, has had poetry printed in the Ariel, and is a member of the Lawrence staff, semi-weekly college publication.

Theta Sigma Phi is an active women's organization on the campus. Shortly after the beginning of the year it published a student directory and just before Christmas put out the third annual edition of Ships.

Following the initiation services a banquet was held at the Conway hotel. Faculty members present were Miss Olga Achtenhagen, and Miss Ruth Norton.

CONSIDER PLANS FOR WALTHER LEAGUE PLANS

The general committee for the 1929 South Wisconsin district Walther league convention to be held here May 11 and 12, met in the Mount Olive church parlors, Thursday evening to discuss tentative plans for the conference, and to appoint committee chairmen. Representatives of the St. Paul and Mount Olive church were present.

The general committee is composed of Arthur Kahler, Herman Zschachner and William Kraemer of the Mount Olive church, and Carl Voelckers, Rubeck, Schultz and Raymond Nehls of the St. Paul church. The general work committee is composed of Carl Voelckers, chairman, Bernice Schlegel, secretary and Raymond Nehls, treasurer. Convention sessions probably will be held at Lawrence Memorial chapel and the convention banquet on the evening of May 11, is to be held at Armory G. Other dinners and sectional conferences are to be held at the two churches sponsoring the conference. It is expected that delegates and Walther leaguers from throughout the valley, Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, and many other cities will be among those to attend the two day meeting.

RYAN HEIR WEDS SOCIETY WOMAN IN METROPOLIS

New York—(AP)—Thomas Fortune Ryan, 24, grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, financier, and the former Mrs. Margaret Moorehead Rea were on a secret honeymoon Friday after a surprise marriage at the municipal building.

They appeared at the marriage bureau shortly before 11 o'clock Thursday, accompanied by two friends, obtaining a license and were married immediately by City Clerk Michael J. Cruise in his office.

Mrs. John Barry Ryan, mother of the bridegroom, said she knew nothing of the marriage or where her son was.

"If my son is married I don't know a thing about it and I positively have nothing to say," Mrs. Ryan said. "He is not here and I don't know where he is."

Mr. Ryan, who gave his age as 29 and his occupation as rancher, is a member of an old and prominent Roman Catholic family. His father, John Barry Ryan, inherited approximately one-fifth of the estate left by Thomas Fortune Ryan, estimated from $100,000,000 to $500,000,000.

The bridegroom's uncle, Allan A. Ryan, was cut off with the bequest of a pair of cuff links.

The bride is the daughter of the late John Moorehead, Jr., and member of a family that has figured in the steel industry. Her marriage to Henry O. Rea, son of the former president of the Pennsylvania railroad, was a social event in Pittsburgh in 1924. After a honeymoon in Europe they resided in Swickley, a fashionable suburb of Pittsburgh. She obtained a divorce from Rea in Pittsburgh last year. In her license she gave her age as 29.

WISCONSIN WEATHER
Partly cloudy tonight, possibly snow in extreme south portion; Saturday generally fair; colder tonight, except in north central and extreme southeast portion Saturday.

GENERAL WEATHER
A low pressure area over the lower Missouri valley this morning indicates condensation from the lake region to the southern plains states and thence to the north Pacific coast. It is causing widespread precipitation and moderate to mild temperatures over the south and east. The pressure is rising over the Rockies and the Canadian northwest, with lower temperatures over the northwest. The advance of these conditions should cause some more snow here this afternoon, followed by lower temperatures and slowly clearing weather with the wind shifting to north or northwest and becoming fresh.

PLAN NEW LIGHTING SYSTEM FOR AVENUE

C. of C. Retail Division Studies Legal Aspect of Problem

Possibilities of a new street lighting system for the city using the present poles on College Ave., was discussed by members of the special committee of the retail division of the chamber of commerce investigating the problem, at a meeting Friday morning at the chamber office. Most of the period was spent studying the legal aspect of the case.

Plans of the committee now are to have new lights installed on the poles, several feet lower than at present and of an improved type. It is hoped that property owners on the avenue will pay half the cost, the other half to be paid for by the city.

Members of the retail committee have been investigating the lighting system for several months, starting the work before Christmas when talking possibilities for a holiday lighting system.

DEATHS

SAMUEL SMITH
Samuel Smith, 58, died at his home on Crook Ave., Kaukauna, Thursday evening after a long illness. Survivors are his widow and four children, Samuel Jr., Elizabeth, Oliver and Daisy; and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Duxator, Oneida.

The body was taken to the Feehan undertaking parlors, where it will remain until Saturday, when it will be taken to Oneida. Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock at the Oneida Episcopal church, and burial will be in the Oneida cemetery.

MRS. CATHERINE SCHMIDT
Mrs. Catherine Schmidt, 83, died Thursday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Schulteis, 614 S. Cherry St. Survivors are two sons, Charles and Walter, both of Appleton; three daughters, Mrs. William Schulteis and Raymond Nehls of the St. Paul church, and Mrs. Etta Schmidt, Appleton; and Mrs. Anton Handler, Menasha.

The body will be at the Brett-Schneider funeral parlors from Friday night until 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. F. L. Schreckengast. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

VENUES OBTAINED FROM BUS OPERATION under conditions heretofore existing have approximately equaled the cost of operation, including taxes and license fees, and have afforded the company no return upon the capital invested in such facilities, he reported.

"The company cannot, in addition to contributing without return the large amount of capital invested in bus facilities, accept further losses resulting from the imposition of excessive and extortionate license fees," he said.

"The situation now existing shows clearly the uncertainty of the extent of the burden to the business that may be imposed through license fees, and also the wholly illogical manner in which the amount of fees may be determined.

"Rivalry between municipalities as to which may exact the larger tribute is not a just method for fixing such fees, and it is a method intolerable to the operation of the services."

"For example, during 1928, Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. and its subsidiary, Inter-City Bus Co., paid license fees to the city of Menasha amounting to $500. The same number of buses, rendering the same amount of service, under present ordinance would require payment of license fees amounting to $5,000."

Since Menasha raised the bus license fee there, the power company has been operating only three buses in that city.

The new plan apparently has not been entirely satisfactory, as Menasha several days ago engaged a truck to furnish transportation to factory workers in the morning and evening, free of charge. Menasha also had appealed to the Wisconsin Railroad commission for a hearing.

"Every possible effort should be made to reach an arrangement satisfactory to the power company and the several municipalities," said Mayor Rule. "The power company is conducting a service to the public, although it is not realizing any profit from its buses, and I believe it deserves all the cooperation we can give it."

Since the interurban service was discontinued, receipts from passenger service have been only about 65 percent of what they were when the interurban cars and buses were operated together, according to Mr. Ellis.

CLOSE A. A. L. OFFICES SATURDAY MORNING

Officers of the Aid Association for Lutherans will be closed Saturday morning according to G. D. Ziegler, president, out of respect to the late Dr. G. C. Hoyer for whom funeral services will be held Saturday morning. Dr. Hoyer had been medical director of the association since its incorporation.

Directors of the association will meet Saturday afternoon at Hotel Schroeder, Milwaukee, for the purpose of appointing a new medical director.

GEORGE BEBAN PLAYS IN CHURCH MOVIE

A romance of life among the lowly, of the immigrants to this country and featuring George Beban, famous impersonator of Italian characters, will be the theme of the motion picture to be shown at the Congregational church Sunday evening. The name of the picture is "The Loves of Riccardo." The picture will begin at 7:15. A solo by Helen Mueller, contralto, will feature the musical program.

TO ABANDON BUS SERVICE ON MAR. 15

which would be paid if such license fees were computed on the basis of the state tax, is contended by the company.

The state fixes a tax of one mill per ton mile for the use by common carriers of state highway. The company holds that this tax fairly measures the expense imposed upon the state by reason of such use of the highway.

Under present conditions the company must retire from the field, the statement said. "It will, however, continue to furnish present service (or service equal to that furnished during 1928 if the 1928 license fees are restored) up to, and including March 15, 1929, in order that the municipalities may have ample time to make other provision for the accommodation of the traveling public."

At the time of the necessary abandonment of the company's interurban railway system, it announced its willingness to place in operation additional busses which it has done at a large expenditure. Mr. Ellis pointed out. The offer to place additional busses in operation was based upon then existing conditions and license fees.

VENUES OBTAINED FROM BUS OPERATION under conditions heretofore existing have approximately equaled the cost of operation, including taxes and license fees, and have afforded the company no return upon the capital invested in such facilities, he reported.

"The company cannot, in addition to contributing without return the large amount of capital invested in bus facilities, accept further losses resulting from the imposition of excessive and extortionate license fees," he said.

MAUTHE DISCUSSES GAME LAW ISSUES

Outlines Work of Commission Since It Was Created in 1927

Madison—(AP)—Conservation problems and remedies were presented to more than three hundred persons, including 100 state legislators, who attended a banquet here Thursday night given by the Isaac Walton League of Wisconsin to members of the state senate and assembly.

Chairman William Mauthe of the state conservation commission, outlined the work of the commission since its creation in 1927 and spoke at length on future conservation needs of the state.

The speaker emphasized the individual responsibility to guard against fire and obey the game laws and regulations imposed on sportsmen. The necessity for removal of timber slashings along public constructed highways and was voiced by the speaker who urged such removal be made a part of the contract for their construction.

"The pollution of streams and lakes still is going on," he said. "Unpopular public opinion aggressively demands pollution be stopped. It will continue to go on. While municipal governments discharge their sewage into public waters little can be expected from private industry."

Chairman Mauthe suggested some county parks might be selected to serve as public hunting and fishing areas, or that cities and counties acquire land for such purposes, in view of the rapid acquisition of good hunting grounds by wealthy sportsmen or sportsmen's clubs.

Other speakers included O. W. Smith, Milwaukee, who discussed the need of cooperation for conservation; H. L. Russell, dean of the department of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin and E. J. Tinker of Washington, D. C., chief of the Lake states Federal Forest area.

The cut blocks are placed on a conveyor which takes it to the ice house where it is packed in sawdust to keep it from melting. Jigsaws are used for cutting it.

Green Bay—(AP)—Use of limestone by farmers of Brown county for correcting soil acidity is on the increase. For the first time, according to County Agent J. N. Kavanaugh, individual farmers are ordering limestone in carload lots.
